

COMMANDER OF ARMY AIR BASE KILLED IN ELECTRICAL STORM AT AIRPORT HERE

600-Mile Red Front Periled By Nazi Drive

By EDDY GILMORE.

MOSCOW, July 14.—(P)—German men, machines and planes in overwhelming numbers put nearly 600 miles of Russia's front in dire peril tonight.

Multiple threats were fast developing to highly important industrial, strategic and psychological objectives from the rim of the north Caucasian area to the Moscow front itself.

Headlines flung atop the mastheads of the newspapers told the Red army that "serious danger threatens your country" and pleaded for ever-stronger blows to stop "the on-rushing enemy."

Organs of both Communist party and army—Pravda and Red Star—urgently sounded the "second front" note. Said Red Star: "The Germans want to defeat us before our Allies can land on the continent."

Swift military developments in the Don valley, on the Don valley steppes and at Voronezh heightened the danger to Stalinograd, the Volga communications system and the east Caucasus, from which Russia gets more than 80 per cent of her oil.

(Some Axis reports implied that the German columns which pierced the north Caucasian area south of Boguchar had crossed the Don to overrun Kazansk, on the east bank of the river 30 miles southeast of Boguchar, and also had reached Migulinsk, on the west bank 10 more miles southeast. That would put the Germans 160 miles from Stalinograd on the Volga.)

The Germans were throwing in vast numbers of tanks, planes and motorized units of infantry over the broad southern sector, being partly held up only in the Voronezh district of the upper Don. Even there, a breakthrough made the situation very grave.

With the double threat to Stalinograd increasing both south of Boguchar and east of Lisichansk, 140 miles southwest of Boguchar, it appeared possible that the Russians may be preparing retreat across the Don to making a stand before the river, as they did so valiantly at Voronezh.

It was obvious in these critical hours that it was better to lose land and to inflict great losses on the attackers than to stand before superior numbers and run the risk of losing great numbers yourself.

Indicative of the weight of the German pressure south of Boguchar was the Red Star's statement that "the Germans have

Doctor Pleads Guilty

To Espionage Charge

HARTFORD, Conn., July 14.—(P)—Dr. Wolfgang Ebel, of El Paso, Texas, pleaded guilty in federal court here today to a charge of conspiring to violate the 1917 espionage act by furnishing American military secrets to Germany and Japan.

Only two of five persons arrested for the alleged conspiracy remain to be tried at a hearing now scheduled to start July 28. The two are Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, former German-American Bund leader, and the Rev. Kurt Molzahn, of Philadelphia.

Another Talmadge Old Stalwart Quits

Allen Darden, of Tax Division, Parts With Governor.

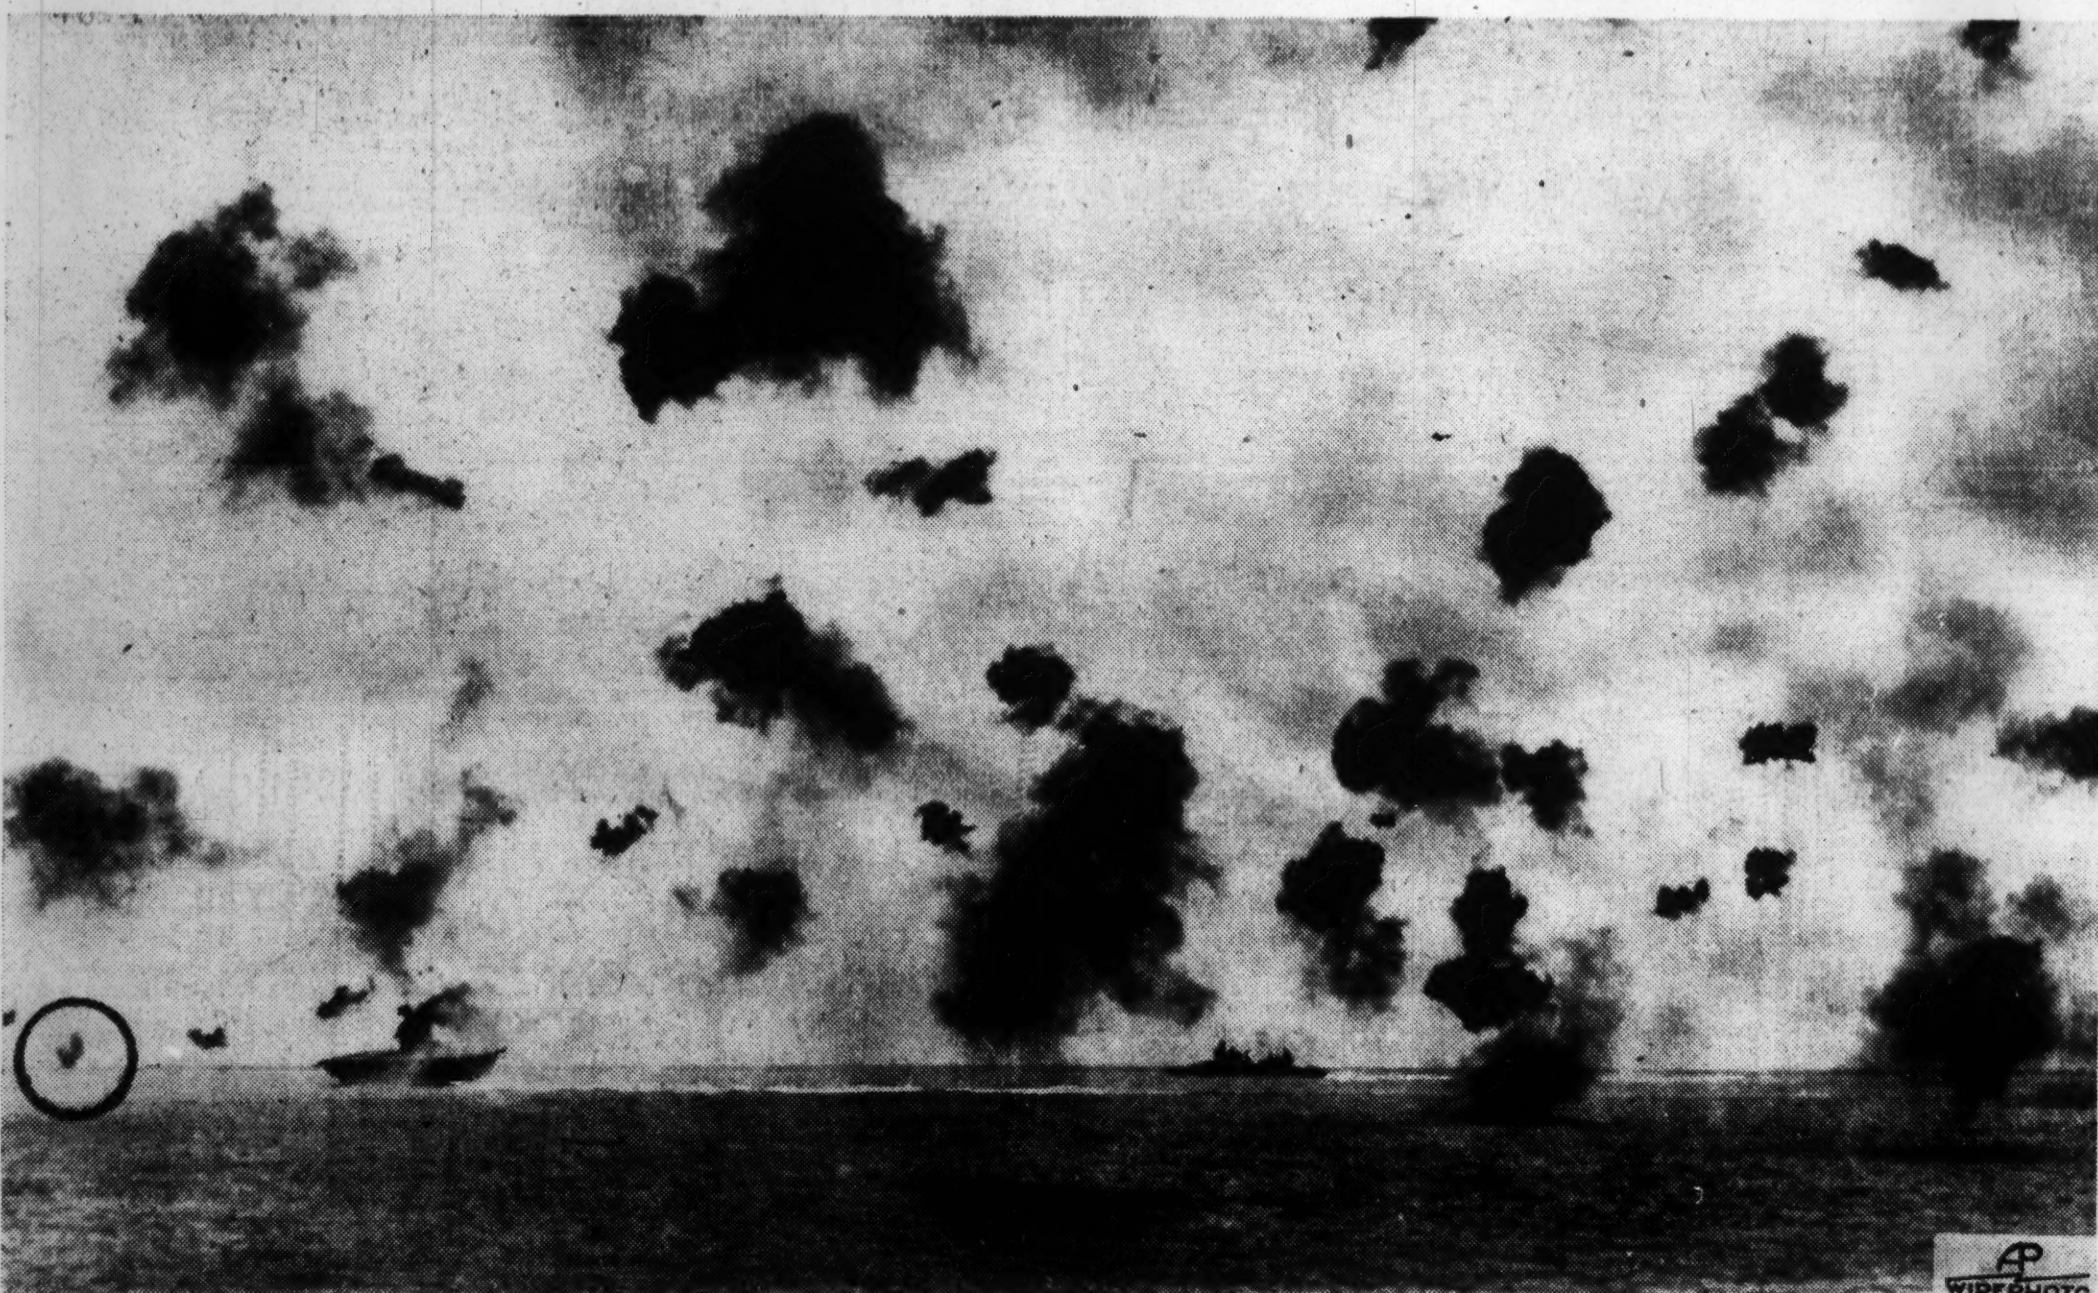

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

The resignation of Allen Darden, director of the income, intangible and inheritance tax division of the state of Georgia, was announced suddenly and mysteriously yesterday by Governor Talmadge, who had kept the matter secret since last Saturday or very likely, since June 2.

In the resignation of Darden, the Governor loses another of his old stalwarts—the man who had managed former campaigns for Talmadge, but more important the state of Georgia loses an executive with an organization genius that has increased his departmental collections 52 per cent within the last year while he slashed his departmental costs by 18 per cent.

The Governor's sudden announcement of the resignation, in a flash of the Talmadge fury and bitterness, came as a startling

HEIGHT OF BATTLE—This dramatic photograph was released by the Navy last night as it revealed the staggering defeat suffered by a Japanese armada near Midway. It shows the umbrella of protective anti-aircraft bursts hurled against Jap bombing planes as they sought to destroy the U. S. aircraft carrier Yorktown (left), and its escort of destroyers. A column of smoke (circle) rises from a Jap plane shot down into the sea. Size of the enemy force, 80 vessels, indicated the Japs had expected to seize Midway island, protective outpost of Hawaii. American losses in men and vessels were small compared with the destruction visited upon the enemy.

Truelove Sells Bonds at Lula

LULA, Ga., July 14.—(P)—Lieutenant Denver V. Truelove, a resident of Lula and one of the fliers who bombed Tokyo, turned his experiences into cash for the war effort here last night.

More than 1,000 persons gathered at the high school auditorium to do him honor. Anyone who asked Truelove about the bombing raid over Tokyo was required to buy a war bond before getting an answer.

Postmaster John E. Jones, of Lula, sold $13,341 in bonds.

Bond Breakfast Pledges Hurdle 2-Million Mark

Subscriptions to Atlanta's Million Dollar War Bond Breakfast yesterday went over the $2,000,000 mark, and telephone, telegraph and personal requests for pledge cards continued pouring into headquarters until a late hour.

The exact total was not available yesterday, Chairman John L. Conner said, because it was all he and his staff could do to keep up with the requests. Already there are more than 500 acceptances for the affair which takes place at 9 o'clock Friday morning at the Biltmore hotel.

A partial list of the impressive pledges made yesterday was released by Mr. Conner as follows: a life insurance company of Canada, $100,000; an Atlanta insurance company, $25,000; a doctor, $50,000; a real estate and insurance firm, $50,000; a general insurance agent, $5,000; a credit union, $15,000; a department store, $5,000; another department store, $10,000; another credit union, $28,000; a metal supply company, $5,000; an advertising agency, $1,000; a savings and loan association, $5,000; another savings and loan association, $6,000; a third savings and loan association, $5,000; a doctor, $5,000; a cotton mill, $25,000; a stationer, $1,900, and a banking company, $10,000.

Franklin Lamb, consulting expert on the War Savings Staff Executive Committee, of Washington, yesterday visited Mr. Conner. He announced that the local breakfast which is scheduled for American Heroes Day will be broadcast by Don McNeill on NBC Blue network from 9 to 10 o'clock. Headquarters for the breakfast is 113 Hurt building.

Huge Enemy Fleet Of 80 Vessels Fled

By RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(P)—The incessant pounding of American fliers sank or damaged a score of Japanese ships in the Battle of Midway, the Navy announced tonight, and threw what had been a bristling 80-ship enemy armada into headlong flight. On our side, the aircraft carrier Yorktown was put out of action and the destroyer Hammann was sunk.

In all, the enemy losses were: Four aircraft carriers, two heavy cruisers, three destroyers and one transport sunk. Three battleships, two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and at least three transports damaged, many severely.

An estimated 275 Japanese aircraft destroyed in the air or lost at sea because their carriers had been sunk.

Approximately 4,800 Japanese killed or drowned. By comparison, American losses were extremely light. They were: The aircraft carrier Yorktown put out of action when a Japanese bombing attack left her listing. As a consequence planes could not use her flight deck.

Destroyer Lost. The destroyer Hammann torpedoed and sunk in the latter stages of the battle by a Japanese submarine. Most of her personnel was saved.

Ninety-two officers and 215 enlisted men.

No exact figures were given for American plane losses, but it was said at the Navy Department that they could be gauged by the number of men killed. The total casualties of 307 would indicate American plane losses of scarcely more than 50 even if all the casualties were among the airmen.

The Navy made these announcements in giving its first complete blow-by-blow account of the battle, an action which continued from June 3 through June 6 and was considered to have been aimed by the Japanese at the seizure of Midway island.

The Japanese fleet, approaching in two divisions, turned tail early on the morning of June 4. At that time only 10 Japanese ships had been hit and American officers expected the enemy to continue forcefully pressing the attack. A little time was lost in relocating the Japanese ships. From that time until June 6 it was a

Fund Campaign Only $86,437 Short of Goal

Yesterday Atlanta's 4,000 volunteer workers were only $86,437 away from their goal of $354,000 in the United War Fund drive which ends Friday, and confidence was expressed by W. E. Mitchell, general chairman for the campaign, that it would be brought to a successful conclusion.

General canvass, office building and initial gifts divisions reported for the second time at a luncheon yesterday.

Totals in the divisions were as follows: general canvass, $15,182; office buildings, $17,769; initial gifts, $26,060.

Preston S. Arkwright, chairman for the initial gifts division, said in making his report he thought the quota was an impossible one when he began work on the three-county drive. "I apologize," he said. "From now on, I will never lose faith in the people of Atlanta."

Announcement and commendation came from General Chairman Mitchell for the work being done in Atlanta's Greek colony, under the leadership of George T. Moore, local head of Greek War Relief, one of the 10 agencies which will benefit from the drive. Moore has personally raised more than $3,000 among Atlanta Greeks, it was pointed out.

The employees' division will meet for a third report at 12:30 o'clock today and the groups which reported yesterday will meet again on Thursday.

Showers Expected To Arrive Today

After the official Weather Bureau at the Atlanta Municipal airport had experienced one of the worst rain and electrical storms in the history of the office, which arrived early last night, Glen Jefferson, official weather forecaster, predicted more showers for today, along with hot, tire-wearing weather.

Yesterday's storm seemed to vent all its fury around Hapeville and the Weather Bureau, cross-town residents reporting that only a light shower fell near their homes. Yesterday's high temperature was 92 degrees, while the low reading was 70.

4 Killed, 5 Injured

As Gas Tanks Explode

WAYNESVILLE, N. C., July 14.—(P)—Four gasoline storage tanks blew up with an earth-shaking explosion here early today, causing the loss of four lives, possibly five, injury to five persons, and heavy property damage.

About 45,000 gallons of gasoline and fuel oil were estimated to have been destroyed. In addition, 10,000 pounds of rubber collected in the recent scrap drive was lost.

Blood Donated Here Has Hectic Career In Lawson's Lab

By JEANNE OSBORNE.

If you have given any blood lately at the Red Cross donor center here, it is probably now going through a hectic process of five steps, which might be termed "how a mixup was settled."

From the donor center, on Peachtree street, the blood is taken to the Lawson General Hospital Blood Laboratory, for the five processing steps before being shipped to its final life saving goal, the bedside of some sick or wounded soldier in an Army hospital in the Fourth Corps Area.

In this blood lab, manned by three pretty technicians and two enlisted men, the five vital processes in getting the blood contributed by patriotic citizens ready for emergency use in Army camp or hospital or wherever it is needed are performed. It is here that the blood plasma, the nutritive part of the blood which is necessary for life, is separated from the red blood cells.

When the lab began to operate, May 8, six to 24 bottles were sent to all base hospitals in the Fourth Corps Area as an initial shipment. Since then, 500 bottles had been shipped out up until July 1. Hundreds of pints more are ready and waiting in the blood bank to answer immediate need and perhaps to save the lives of fighting men.

This miracle in preparedness has been wrought by the skillful fingers of Mrs. Catherine V. Stone, Miss Ruth Mathis, Miss Jane Wait, and Stanley Zacharias, an enlisted man, who are often forced to work with windows and doors closed and masks on their faces even in this midsummer heat. They really get "heated up" about their patriotism.

"The heyday of the blood" begins with its breath-taking whirl in the centrifuge and ends with its thawing out in the water bath.

In step 1 the bottle of blood are weighed carefully before being inserted into the centrifuge where the red cells are settled to the bottom and the clear plasma separated on top.

"The bottles must balance horizontally or they will break to pieces in the machine," pretty, vivacious Jane Wait explained. They are then revolved in the machine for 30 minutes at 2,300 revolutions per minute.

Assistants then shut windows and doors and don their nose masks for step 2, drawing the plasma off with a valve and aspirating needle into large pooling bottles, containing a 50 per cent glucose solution. A red light shines translucently through the clear plasma so that it can be separated easily. Three c.c.'s are drained from each bottle and inserted into a culture medium in order to be sure that the plasma contains no harmful bacteria. The culture test tubes are watched carefully for 10 days at intervals of 24, 48, and 72 hours and at 7 and 10 days. If no bacteria have developed, the plasma is ready for the next step. Otherwise, it is promptly discarded.

When asked what happened to the red cells which had been settled from the mixture, assistants replied that there was no use for them and they were thrown away.

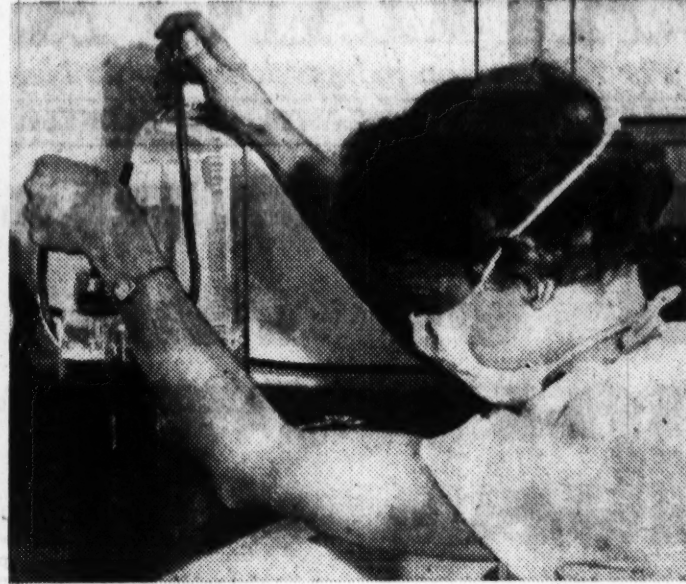

As step 3, the plasma is poured back into small bottles and tested again for bacteria with the same process and time intervals. Now it is ready to be frozen in the ice box at a temperature of minus 20 degrees Fahrenheit. The frozen plasma develops a beautiful pale yellow color and dainty leaf-like crystals.

In the fourth step it is removed from the refrigerator and thawed out in a water bath at 37 degrees Fahrenheit. The bottles can now be left out at room temperature without spoiling for about four months. As the final step, they receive a fancy red cellophane cap to give them a professional touch, and are shipped upon request in packages of six and eight's.

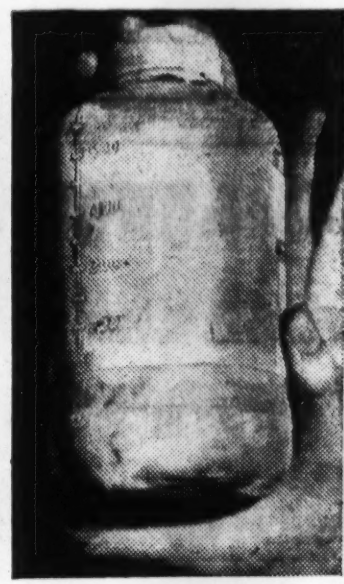

Thus ends the romance of blood, a process which begins with an unselfish contribution and ends with the saving of life.

STEP 1—At the blood laboratory at Lawson General hospital, blood contributed by patriotic citizens is prepared through a process of five steps for shipment to military hospitals. Here Miss Jane Wait, technician, inserts a bottle into the centrifuge to extract the plasma.

STEP 2—Mrs. Catherine V. Stone, head of the lab, siphons off the plasma, so vital in Army hospitals for the treatment of wounded soldiers and sailors.

STEP 3—Here is a bottle of plasma, frozen for preservation and ready for use.

TESTING—Miss Jane Wait inserts a sample of the plasma into a bacteria culture where it is carefully inspected for 10 days. After being frozen, it is thawed out in a water bath (Step 4), sealed with a fancy red top to give it a professional touch, and packed for shipment to Fourth Corps Area Army camps where, in the final step, it will be administered to wounded soldiers, sailors and marines.

Knox Reports Extension of Convoy System

Patrols Now Reach to Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(P)—Secretary of Navy Frank Knox said today that the convoy system, in effect along the east coast of the United States since May 14, has been extended to the Caribbean and will take in the Gulf of Mexico.

"We are getting various patrol vessels to combat submarines into service as rapidly as possible and are increasing the number of patrol planes with equal expedition," he said at a press conference held as he halted here on an inspection tour of the entire eastern seaboard.

Declaring that more officers and men were being thrown into the antisubmarine war, Knox added:

"We have a large submarine-combat school, which now has 1,200 men being trained for this service. It is an extremely difficult service. We require ships of the right type, the right kind of equipment, and the right kind of men to handle them."

Asked if U-boat sinkings along the Atlantic coast were being reduced, Knox replied: "The best answer to that is to read the newspapers. Have you read of any sinkings within 50 miles of the Atlantic coast lately?"

Meanwhile, the sinking of a United States merchant vessel, the Spending of another which managed to reach port under cover of a smoke screen, and the dive-bomber sinking of a Panamanian vessel in the Indian ocean comprised the Navy's latest reports today on the war at sea.

A German U-boat sank a medium-sized American ship June 27 in broad daylight 200 miles from the north coast of South America, raising the Associated Press unofficial tabulation of western Atlantic sinkings to 370.

Air Raid Sirens To Sound Off Here for First Time Today

The biggest and costliest noise Atlantans ever heard will blanket the city and points east, west and indifferent today at high noon when $11,000 worth of sirens sound off for the first time.

The 225 sirens, each packing a two-horsepower punch, will swat eardrums and rebound into echoes at exactly 12 o'clock noon. That's the setup for the first time.

Other sirens scattered from Buckhead to breakfast, will let loose screams at one and the same time. East Point, College Park, Hapeville, Decatur, Avondale and the Emory section are listed for their own noises.

The blanket of sound is the first test for this section with the small red sirens which were installed on telephone poles some months ago and wired for sound only recently.

Avoid Excitement.

"Be sure and ask all air-raid wardens and their families—not the public, just wardens and their families—to report any dead spots," George M. Phillips, Atlanta metropolitan area director for civilian defense, said in making the announcement.

"These reports should go to zone headquarters," he said. "We can avoid much confusion this way, because air-raid wardens will be stationed throughout the city and other sections affected."

It is important that all persons know of the test air-raid signals, Phillips pointed out, so that there will be no panic or undue excitement. This certainly goes for the big sirens at the federal penitentiary which will join in the test. It was at one time used to announce the unscheduled departure of government guests, but has not been sounded in recent years.

Phillips also announced the appointment of two new directors: James Clay, Conyers theater owner, has been named Rockdale county director to succeed W. H. Brisendine, and Ray Torgensen will replace George Y. Wilkins as Cobb county head.

At the same time, it was announced that the 300 air-raid wardens of District No. 1, Zone No. 5, of the Atlanta defense area are 95 per cent trained. The district is commanded by Chief Air-Raid Warden Sam Wood. A white-out is scheduled for tomorrow night for Precinct F-1 of the district, of which P. W. Christian is warden. District 1 of Zone 5 is composed of D-1, F-1 and F-2 precincts.

Talmadge Paroles Flogger Cawthon

Governor Talmadge yesterday approved the parole of Henry J. Cawthon, convicted of assault and battery in April, 1940. A white-out connection with a series of floggings in suburban East Point.

The parole recommendation was made by the State Prison and Parole Commission earlier in the day, although it had rejected Cawthon's appeal for a parole a little over a month ago.

Cawthon completed his 12-month sentence on public works July 7 and then began serving his six-month jail sentence.

Pioneer Negro Dies at LaGrange

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. LAGRANGE, Ga., July 14.—Tribute was paid here Sunday to Ridley R. Greenwood, 84-year-old Negro drayman of this city, who had served the pioneer families of LaGrange for 65 years on occasions of arrival and departure as he hauled their baggage to and from the station, and who was highly respected by all citizens of the town.

Scorning the advent of the truck for hauling, Ridley drove his one-horse wagon, pulled by the last of a faithful line of drayhorses, through the traffic lanes of this city until the time of his last illness, a rebuke to the hurry and bustle of modern life as he and his horse refused to hurry to take their loads to the railroad station.

Ridley was born into slavery in December, 1858. He died Wednesday at his home here and funeral services were conducted from the Warren Temple Methodist Church for colored on Sunday afternoon.

Army Air Base Commander Is Dead in Storm

Colonel Outlaw was in the insurance business before he was called to active duty in the Army.

He flew planes all the time and recently went to Trenton, Ga., to inspect the wreckage of an Army bomber which crashed.

He is survived by his father and a sister, Janie Outlaw, of Clarksville.

Colonel Outlaw was a genial man with a grand sense of humor. He was a meticulous stickler for detail and the job he was doing.

But any one who talked to him in his office when he was relaxing from official duties caught the happy twinkle of his eyes.

Sense of Humor. Fond of humorous true stories, the colonel recently told one on himself. He was in Miami and a civilian guard caught him for looking at an air line's new plane. The colonel laughed himself as he related the details of how the guard insisted on arresting him, uniform or no uniform.

Later, he was released upon identification.

Another story the colonel was fond of telling was about one of his officers who turned up as officer of the day after making plans to be married.

The officer was so happy that Colonel Outlaw let him off duty he insisted on his commanding officer being best man. He accepted.

Methodists To Hold Gainesville Session

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 14.—A group of Methodists from this city, headed by the Rev. D. S. Patterson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and C. M. McClure, will attend a meeting of laymen of the church, their wives and other workers, from the Gainesville district, at the St. Paul church, Gainesville, on Thursday.

The program will begin with a picnic supper, followed by the principal address of the evening by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, of Atlanta. Special invitations have been extended to singers in each of the churches in the district and the song service by the audience will be a feature also. More than 200 are expected to attend. The Rev. C. H. Sewell is pastor of St. Paul church, of Gainesville.

Credit Bureau Manager Honored at Waycross

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. WAYCROSS, Ga., July 14.—Wayne Hinson, manager of the Waycross Credit Bureau and civic leader, was guest of honor at a special meeting of the Waycross Credit Women's Breakfast Club, the meeting being in the nature of a "farewell party" on the eve of Mr. Hinson's departure for service with the United States armed forces.

Mr. Hinson assisted in the organization of the Breakfast Club, and has served as its sponsor. The club presented him with an identification bracelet, the presentation being made by Miss Hazel Vorus, president of the club.

Thanks, Pal, But...

That's really swell advice you've been giving. I've been reading about it, and hearing about it. "Blow Japan out of the water." "Blast hell out of those Gerries." "Open up a second front in France." "Invade Norway." "Knock Mussolini out of the war." "Save India." "Back up Russia, China, Australia." "Win the war now." "Move faster." "Hit harder."

Swell advice, I really mean it. Maybe Roosevelt and Marshall and MacArthur and Admiral King have already thought of most of it, but it's good. The point is, of course, you know who's got to do the job. That's me.

And it's a couple million of my buddies, with more coming. And it's those who went through Bataan and Java, and those who've landed in Ireland, and all those others scattered over the earth and the seven seas.

We don't mind the advice, pal. We can take it along with the rest of our job. But before you dish out any more of it, check up on yourself. Sure, I know they can't accept everybody in the service, but are you doing everything else you can to help finish up this war with Adolf and Hirohito behind the eight ball?

Are you buying all the war bonds your current income will stand? Are you doing it regularly? If not, you ought... but there I go giving advice myself, and that's where this all started.

So... Thanks, pal, but...

LONDON, July 14.—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, commenting on the new All-India Congress party resolution proposing the withdrawal of British rule from India, was quoted by Reuters today as saying "there is no room left for negotiation—either they recognize India's independence or they don't."

School Board Rejects Loan; No Bonus Seen

Education Body Declines To Agree To Repay $75,000 Fund.

The Atlanta board of education yesterday rejected a proposed loan of $75,000 from the mayor and city council to help pay a 10 per cent bonus to 1,900 school department employees for the current quarter, and unless other financing plans are approved, the school bonus plan probably will be suspended.

Declining to agree to repay the $75,000 from surplus which may be accumulated the latter part of the year, the board asked an outright appropriation from council.

In a separate resolution, however, the board agreed that it would undertake to repay the fund if failure to map repayment would force a salary cut for non-school employees, but it added another stipulation that it would not repay the money if such repayment would force a salary reduction for school employees.

When the finance committee recommended that the 10 per cent bonus for city employees be continued for another quarter, it also filed a paper allocating $75,000 for the school department with the proviso that the schools repay the fund from any surpluses which might accrue. Council approved, and the mayor signed the resolution.

Thomas C. Clift, school business manager, said no school pay day is scheduled before August 5. He said that unless some arrangement is made, the bonus payments for school workers probably will be suspended.

The board accepted the resignation of J. P. Barron, former principal of the Maddox Junior High school, but took no action towards naming a successor.

Here Are Timely Suggestions For Boys Ready for Induction

By SGT. M. BRYAN BAKER.

If you're not planning to join one of the armed services or don't have a relative who's going to get at the Japs, then this won't be of interest to you.

This relates only to those potential soldiers and regards the few articles that are necessary during the first days of induction processing, as well as advisable steps to take in particular instances.

Of course, one will need toilet articles such as Soap, towel, toothbrush and paste, razor, underwear, brown socks and brown shoes. The shoes and socks aren't necessary. However, if they're to be worn after the uniform is issued, for dress purposes, brown is mandatory, black being out of uniform.

Be sure to wear clothes that you won't mind soiling. They'll have to be sent back home anyway (postage, government paid) and for goodness' sake, don't bring along a large amount of luggage, that'll only be in your way and stand a good chance of being misplaced.

Get Guardians' Consent.

Do not have letters, and by all means no money, sent to your induction center, unless you have been permanently assigned to some unit for a reasonable period of time. You may write to your friends and relatives, but it would be advisable to tell them not to answer until you have been sent to a base station where you will receive your preliminary training, or pending permanent assignment.

In case you are 20 or under, and were not registered in February,

Emory Unit Ordered To Active Duty

Group Will Mobilize, Report for Service August 15.

The Emory Unit, a complete hospital organization, consisting of physicians, nurses and technicians, yesterday was ordered to active duty.

Lieutenant Colonel Ira A. Ferguson, commander of the unit, said the orders he received yesterday from the War Department called for the unit to be mobilized and report for active duty August 15.

Colonel Ferguson said the unit will mobilize here, and travel as a unit to a hospital where they will be on duty.

The unit, first organized in 1917, and which served for a long time in France, has more than 70 physicians, mostly Atlantans, 120 nurses and a number of hospital technicians.

Additional nurses are needed for the unit, Colonel Ferguson said yesterday, and he requested qualified nurses who desire to see service with the unit to report to him at his office.

Moyer Is Named To WPB Post Here

Appointment of Harry S. Moyer, former regional administrative manager for the Office of Emergency Management, as southeastern compliance chief for the War Production Board was announced yesterday by O. M. Jackson, deputy regional WPB director.

Moyer is a native of Virginia. The WPB also announced the placing of contracts totaling $5,903,000 in the southeast by the regional metals section of that agency.

The contracts, placed in recent weeks with 20 manufacturers, called for the production of chemical bombs, forming plates, airplane landing gear, tanker parts, steel splinter shelters, liberty ship masts, structural steel, steel ladders and railings, transport buses, signal corps steel bodies and Army magazine stoves.

Pants Appeal Is Answered By Roosevelt

'Tonnage,' All 386 Lbs., Cheerful on Learning Matter's Solved.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., July 14.—(AP)—"Tonnage" Wolfkeil went cheerfully about his duties today, serene in the knowledge that President Roosevelt got him some work pants.

Tonnage, formerly M. R. Wolfkeil, is materials supervisor at California Shipbuilding Corporation. When ever-increasing portions of his ample frame became exposed to the salty breezes, he appealed personally to the President.

Wolfkeil, for the record, weighs 386 pounds, measures 57 inches around the waist and two inches more around the chest. He is 6 feet, 1 inch tall.

He has been assured by Jack E. Doron, chief of the work clothes unit, War Production Board, to whom Roosevelt referred his problem, that the clothes would be forthcoming.

"He said he was sending me a couple of shirts, two pair of pants, and some dungarees and jumpers. I'll be fixed up for years. This is the only country in the world where the President would take time out from war to find a workman some pants."

Bicycle Slips Will Be Issued Here Friday

Certificates Now Being Given Out to Southern Ration Boards.

It's all right about those bicycles now. Beginning Friday, bicycle purchase certificates will be issued by local ration boards.

The purchase certificate forms, which had not arrived at the regional office of the Office of Price Administration Monday, came yesterday and are now being distributed to ration boards throughout the southeast, it was announced.

Qualifications which must be met to receive a purchase order are, in general, as follows: Applicant must live in an area where public transportation facilities already are overcrowded, or he must live more than three miles from nearest public transportation facilities, or he must be engaged in messenger or other similar type work.

Only persons gainfully employed or in war work will be eligible for bicycle purchase certificates. The foregoing requirements apply only to adult bicycles.

Whelchel Raps Campaign Gas

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Unlimited supplies of gasoline should no, be allowed those campaigning for public office, Representative Frank Whelchel, of Georgia, wrote Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

The north Georgia congressman said any such plan would be "unfair to discrimination" and should be stopped.

"With our nation so desperately in need of this product for its war effort," Whelchel wrote, "and with farmers, traveling salesmen and many others undertaking to earn a livelihood, including the war workers of this nation, restricted by gasoline rationing, this proposal, in my way of thinking, the most illogical regulation yet to be issued by our government."

"The American people are patriotic and are willing to suffer and sacrifice to win the war, but they will certainly question the integrity of a regulation so grossly unfair to them."

Atlanta Firm Bids Low on Street Job

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 14.—(AP)—R. T. Smith, of Atlanta, submitted a low bid of $116,449.62 to the State Highway Department today for grading, draining and removing structures along Anniston's Quintard avenue, to be converted into a military access road to nearby Fort McClellan.

Only one bid, that of Lebetter Johnson, Rome, Ga., was submitted for paving, and attached to it was a letter saying this part of the project was not wanted unless the bidder was successful at $143,683.73 in obtaining the grading, draining and removal job.

Highway officials said subsequent bids would be asked on paving. Letting of contracts is subject to approval of the U. S. Public Roads Administration. Mitchell Bros., Birmingham, submitted the second lowest bid for grading, draining and removing structures, $125,948.52. Carlton Contracting Co., Albany, Ga., was third, $128,360.12.

Credit Investigator Here Faces Swindle Charge

Charged with cheating and swindling and assault and battery, William C. Henson, lawyer and operator of a credit investigation service, yesterday was bound over to the criminal court of Fulton county in bonds totalling $400. The complainants were Jean Wallace, A. H. Druker and M. A. Clements.

Miss Wallace charged before Judge Luther Z. Rosser of Fulton civil court, that Henson gave her a bad check, but slapped her when she refused to return money which she said he had given her for performing an errand. The checks offered in evidence by the plaintiffs amounted to $74.50.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 15, 1942.

One-Man Rule

Georgia counties long have taken a great and proper pride in participating in the government of the state.

It is because this participation is now abolished that provides one of the reasons why Georgia is turned away from Governor Talmadge and is looking to his opponent to restore the counties to self-government.

This is not an exaggerated statement but one of plain fact.

As long as House Bill No. 1 remains, and the Governor will insist that it remain on the books, the legislature of Georgia is, except in small ways, a meaningless body.

The history of that remarkable bill, which literally and factually made the government of Georgia a one-man government, and reduced the legislature to a humiliating and subservient position, when the Constitution of the state really made it the law-making body of the state, is interesting.

In 1929 when Dick Russell was the nominee and also speaker of the house, a special session was called in the early spring. This session of the legislature passed the budget law, requiring each department to submit a quarterly budget. The legislature also set up a fund known as the emergency fund.

These emergency funds the Governor may spend as he sees fit.

All other funds may be spent only for the purpose authorized by law and for the specific purpose for which the appropriation was passed.

The legislature was, as provided, the law-making body and had power to appropriate money.

House Bill Number 1 authorized the Governor to transfer the state's money from one department to another.

As soon as it was passed, the Governor promptly transferred every cent of the people's money to the emergency fund. He can spend it as he chooses whether it be authorized by law or not.

He can withhold the funds from any department or all departments. He can hold his power as a club over every state employee, no matter how small the job may be.

He can ignore the Board of Regents, and himself operate the university. This he chose to do, with results familiar to the state.

He can select, if he chooses, the teachers for any and all schools.

He can ignore the county superintendents and county officials and send the checks direct to each teacher or withhold the checks.

The legislature can do nothing about it.

The legislature is subservient to the Governor.

One of the questions before the people of Georgia is whether or not they want one man to have that much power.

Has the state of Georgia become so bereft of men that only one can have any voice in the government of the state? Do the counties and the state employees wish to live in fear, at the mercy of one man?

In this connection, with the next term of four years, it may be well to recall that it was in Governor Talmadge's second term—he now seeks a fourth—that he ran wild. It was then he burned open safes, threw out, with military aid, the elected officials of the state, and otherwise kept the state in turmoil and disorder.

In the present term the governor has removed the state university from the accredited lists and given a general idea of what might be expected in the way of personal power acts in the next term, if the people of Georgia decide they are to give him this fourth term to serve as judge and jury, too.

Already, in some localities, they are dragging the rivers for old rubber, and all elderly Missouri catfish can consider themselves warned.

How to scorch the waters of Suez, if retreat compels it, is a problem. But that Normandie repair crew could doubtless find a way.

Now that terms of the coming peace are in debate, is it too early to suggest that anyone winning the African desert three times be given permanent possession?

Down Peachtree Street

Vincent Sheehan, the brilliant war correspondent who recently lectured in Atlanta, returned to London toward the end of the Spanish Civil war and wrote a book called "Not Peace but a Sword."

He began it with the description of a bus ride. Seeing a woman looking into Selfridge's great department store windows, he wondered what would happen if he were to go to that woman and ask her if she knew where the Ebro river flowed.

He went on to say, truthfully, that the Ebro river flowed down London's Oxford Street.

It did. It flowed down our own Peachtree street and down all the main streets of the world.

Today we have another river. Russia's Don river flows down Peachtree street.

It flows down every main street of every small town and every great city. It flows in all our lives because what happens at the Don happens to us all. The future depends, to a great extent, on what happens at the Don.

The news is not good.

There is an appeal for a second front which this country, a bare eight months in the war and handicapped by the chains of the isolationists and appeasers who bound the nation's arms until December 7, is not yet able to give in an effective manner.

The Don flows in all our lives, down all our streets.

Jan Struther

A charming young lady, Jan Struther, wrote a popular book called "Mrs. Miniver." It was about an English woman who kept on doing her duty and her job with simple dignity and courage while the war raged on about her.

It was an appealing book.

Yesterday Jan Struther, who is really Mrs. Anthony Maxtone-Graham, wife of an officer in the Scots Guards, arrived in Atlanta to attend the film made from her book.

As she arrived she received a telegram saying her husband had been captured by the Germans in Egypt.

It was shocking news for her and her children.

She telephoned her children, before releasing the news. She then attended the luncheon given for her, made an appearance at the picture, and visited the wounded and sick soldiers at Lawson hospital.

All this she did quietly, showing none of the sorrow and fear which must have been in her mind.

This little story makes us appreciate "Mrs. Miniver" the more. We understand now, why the book had such a human, truthful quality.

Dr. J. Sprole Lyons

A loss almost as great to the community as it was to the church he had served so long came with the death of Atlanta's beloved Rev. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, minister emeritus of the First Presbyterian church.

The 22 years Dr. Lyons served his church marked a period of change and growth, through which he was able to interpret and guide in an age of turmoil and materialism. His last years were marked by lessened activity but undimmed faith in the progress of the world.

To measure the good he did is impossible. But thousands know in their hearts the measure of the city's loss.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE DIE IS CAST.

(From The American Times-Recorder.)
Voters of Georgia now have a pretty good picture of what to expect during the next two months as candidates campaign for the various state offices.

Most interest, of course, centers in the gubernatorial race, which will be a two-man affair between Governor Eugene Talmadge and Attorney General Ellis Arnall. Most Georgians were hoping that the list of candidates for this high office would not exceed two.

The issue between the two candidates is clear cut. It is an important issue.

The issue is not over state's rights and the race issue, as one of the candidates would have you believe. Georgians are strongly of the same opinion in regard to the Negro question and that question ceased to be an issue years ago. Georgians will stand united against any effort of outsiders who, ignorant of the question, might strive to change our policy on the matter. So that is not the issue in this campaign.

The issue is whether the great state of Georgia wants a government of, by and for the people, or one by a dictatorial demagogue. Whether Georgia is to go forward in education and industry and regain the respect of fellow Americans from other sections of our great nation, or to lag and be the target for scornful, sarcastic and humorous jibes.

Ellis Arnall is a young, clean and energetic man with outstanding ability. He offers a program that is sound, ambitious, commendable and reasonable. The Times-Recorder is happy to lend its support to Mr. Arnall's candidacy.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

NEW ECONOMY WASHINGTON, July 14.—No more revolutionary change has ever taken place in the economy of a great country than ours has experienced since the outbreak of the war.

Already we have appropriated more money for the war effort than was spent by the government in its entire history from George Washington's time to the beginning of the last world war in 1917.

In one appropriation bill passed by congress a few weeks ago we appropriated a greater amount—some $2 billion dollars—than the sum total of our national debt after the last conflict.

Only the other day Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, revealed that our military expenditures for the current year 1942 will amount to 45 billion dollars, or roughly more than half of what our national income was before the war. By 1943, he said, we will turn out war goods of one kind or another to a value of 75 billion dollars.

If the war lasts two or three years longer, most of the economists agree that our national debt will reach at least 200 billion dollars. It may be more. Nobody knows.

These are astronomical figures which in ordinary peacetime would be enough to drive the orthodox conservative financial mind to madness. Now we think nothing of it. Our main preoccupation is with winning the war, realizing that if we don't win it all of the values we have heretofore known and all of our accumulations will be wiped out completely. Not only this, but our trade and commercial intercourse with other nations will be so threatened by Nazi restrictions that it would probably be 50 years before we could expect to rise again to our former station.

Hence, we are not thinking of the costs but only of the ultimate victory we must achieve to preserve our way of living and the four freedoms of which the President and Prime Minister have spoken.

TORIES CHANGE Not even the most orthodox financial viewpoint is critical of the heavy expenditures the war has imposed upon us. On the contrary, some of the most die-hards of the former Tories are yielding something of the rigidity of their past financial concepts and now are acknowledging that the stupendous national debt that face the country does not necessarily mean ruin or the sacrifice of private enterprise. Both of these, however, would be preferable to losing the war.

Writing in the current issue of the Magazine of Wall Street, Laurence Stern, a former member of the orthodox school, sheds some of his former rigidity in appraising our future financial situation.

"... Nobody really knows how much federal debt is supportable in a country without an epidemic or disastrous inflation. The nearest example that could have any value is that of England. Twice in the last century and a half she had a debt equivalent to double her national income—and 'got away with it.'"

"At the indicated level of our 1942 national income, that would be equivalent to a debt of about $225,000,000,000. It is a historical fact that 'orthodox' economists have always and very greatly underestimated national debt-carrying capacity."

Mr. Stern did not say so, but he probably had in mind the record of British economists in predicting national bankruptcy each time the British debt was doubled over the past few hundred years. And yet after each doubling or tripling of the debt the country always seemed to undergo a greater period of prosperity.

DISCARD LIMITS Pointing to the enormous increase in industrial production we have attained under the co-operative action of government and private enterprise without monetary limits, the writer says all of this poses a question by the American people which no one will ever be able to answer convincingly. It is this:

It is possible to do this in wartime, why is it not also possible to discover practical, workable means of doing it in peacetime? What he means is that by discarding monetary limits and orthodox financial concepts we have achieved a higher degree of industrial production and general prosperity than ever before dreamed of in the history of the country. Unemployment is a dead issue, except in relation to transition industries. Why cannot we do the same thing under peacetime conditions, when the products of our industrial production could go to the greater comfort and happiness of the people?

It is a question that is bound to inject itself into the future politics and economy of the country, once the war is won.

Mr. Stern concludes by asking if it is visionary to say that in the post-war years it will be impossible for us to maintain a national income of at least $125,000,000,000 in terms of present price levels. On this basis, he points out, assuming that federal and other governmental budgets require $30,000,000,000 to $40,000,000,000 a year for services and amortization of debt, we would still be left with $85,000,000,000 to $95,000,000,000 a year for consumer spending and private savings investment, which is more than we ever had before.

Considered in this light, no one can be anything but bullish on America.

PROTESTS CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Editor, Constitution: This is my pulse. For years, at intervals I have publicly expressed my convictions as to what is familiarly known as capital punishment. In other words we might call it judicial murder. What right has one man to take away the life (unrestrainable) of another man? Is it right? Is it a right? Who confers such a right on a bunch of men? Would it be right for one single member of the bunch of men to do it? Would it be right for another human being of his life—the gift of his Creator? Would any single man composing a jury, if left to his own judgment, take it upon himself, without the support of one or more of his fellow members, dare condemn another man, regardless of the depth of his guilt, of his life, if he himself had the business of executing the victim?

I have advocated, and pleaded for the abolishment of the death penalty when it was the disgrace of Georgia to hang "by the neck until dead" those whom juries decide to be guilty of such crimes as law as pronounced subject to this brutal penalty. Once it was customary in some nations to sever the head of a man and put it on a pole for home and foreign consumption. The electric chair death method has succeeded the former mode of death penalty—hanging. This is not sufficient! No human has a just right to take upon himself the privilege of depriving another one of God's creatures of the life given by God alone.

MRS. L. A. N. HAMES.

OPPOSES GAS TAX RATIONING

Editor, Constitution: The War between the States ended 77 years ago, but Georgia has been discriminated against ever since. At no time has this discrimination been worse than at the present time.

When our nation is engaged in a war which reaches to the far corners of the earth and its success largely depends upon the unity and co-operation of its people, the national government deliberately invites criticism by rationing gasoline in a state where it is unnecessary, and to aggravate matters, increases the price on an already indignant people.

Gasoline hauled from Georgia into neighboring states and sold unrationed at two cents per gallon less than where it was hauled from! How can we prosecute a war on foreign lands when such outrages are perpetrated at home. We, the people of Georgia, must fight oppression and tyranny wherever we find it. Therefore, seemingly we are engaged in a fight for democratic principals on all fronts.

HOPES TALMADGE WILL BE DEFEATED

Editor, Constitution: I am so glad to see that your paper is not for Talmadge for Governor. We need a different type man, one who stands for the right, a man of principle, not one who will stoop to do underhanded things in order to carry out his schemes.

He caters to the ignorant class and makes them believe he is for the "poor" man. He tries to make himself one of them by wearing overalls, red suspenders and a wool hat and by mixing and mingling with them. All he is after is the vote. They are so dumb they believe he is their friend.

I have read the article in the Saturday Evening Post, June 27th issue, the title of which is "The Wool Hat Dictator."

It certainly shows up Talmadge in his true light. I don't think it is exaggerated. All the crooked things he has done since he has been in office are innumerable. He opposed the President in laying the pipe line which was so essential.

Our President could see in ad-

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Teamsters' Views NEW YORK, July 14.—As a regular reader of the International Teamster, the monthly magazine of the AFL, I am pleased to observe that the higher leaders of the union, one of the largest in the country, are adopting openly nowadays many of the views which, when expressed in these dispatches, have been denounced by professional unionists as anti-labor copy. The president of the union and editor of the magazine is Daniel J. Tobin, who is also a member of the executive council of the AFL. The assistant editor, a professional journalist, is Lester M. Hunt.

Last month Mr. Tobin ran editorial under the startling headline, "Go through those picket lines," which finally acknowledged that the picket line often is a racket used to enrich common grafters or, as he plainly called them, "phony organizers who get 50 cents per head for new members" while "the teamsters do their dirty work." For illustration he cited a case where his men were asked to respect a picket line, thus violating four contracts of their own making, and victimizing themselves by loss of wages, at premises in which only four of the 25 persons employed were union members and those four union men for less than one month.

Mr. Tobin thus confirmed a contention which, offered doggedly in these dispatches for years, as a matter of principle, has been misrepresented as anti-labor propaganda.

Wagner Act This month Mr. Tobin's leading editorial is entitled "Enforce It Fairly or Repeal It." Developing this startling demand from the president of one of the strongest unions in the nation, he reports that the governing body of the teamsters recently decided that the National Labor Relations Board was "polluted with prejudice against craft unionism" and would present a demand for its repeal at the next AFL convention "unless its methods are immediately changed."

The gist of the complaint is that the act, as administered, compels workers to join unions not of their own choice. That criticism of the act and its administration and of union activity has been expressed in these pieces more than once in the past five years and invariably has been branded as anti-laborism, even by officials of the AFL. Indeed, for that matter many of Mr. Tobin's own local and regional unions have been flagrantly guilty of the same thing, forcing thousands of workers to join the teamsters against their will. And it is the very purpose of the "phony organizers" mentioned in his June editorial, operating by means of hired rascals as he called them, to drive workers into various unions for a bounty of 50 cents per head. Hundreds of thousands of scalps of workers so obtained have been delivered and paid for like varmint pelts at the bounty office of some western county.

Shakedown Rackets But, it will be noted, Mr. Tobin does mention the shakedown racket of the building trades which compel free Americans to accept unions not of their own choice and compel free Americans to accept unions not of their own choice and compel free Americans to accept unions not of their own choice.

However, he does recognize the principle, and that is the thing. He demands that workers whose occupation puts them within the craft jurisdiction of the teamsters should not be forced to join CIO unions by decree of the labor board, if they prefer not to belong to any union, however they may cite him as being in favor of free choice and against all coercion.

Another article in the July issue offers more agreement. This one denounces some of Mr. Tobin's own men for walking out on the A. & P. bakery in Pittsburgh and picketing the plant in violation of their own agreement in sympathy with some bakers who had declared "an illegal strike" in violation of their agreement. Describing the transportation of food as defense work, the article says the teamsters' union has turned over the facts to "certain law enforcement agencies in Washington" and adds that men who refused to work when ordered should be suspended or expelled. As to the local officers, it says charges may be brought against them and that "once they are out they will never be permitted to return."

Mr. Hunt has an article entitled "Raise Immigration Barriers—Keep Foreign Labor Out," which says, in short, that our great problem after the war will be "to absorb at fair wages the millions of demobilized soldiers, sailors and war workers."

There is also a farewell to a racketeer, denounced as an underworld character who used a teamsters' union to shake down milk trucks in Yonkers and was given three years in prison.

"By the time you read this," Mr. Tobin writes, "he will be expelled. Such men are in the same position as one who betrays his country in time of war."

So apparently we are not so far apart on the major issues after all.

vance that war was coming, and sent a telegram to Governor Talmadge to let the pipe line come through our state, which he refused to do.

The disgrace that he has brought on the state of Georgia by meddling with the Board of Regents of our universities, and thereby taking them off the accredited list is something to make all true Georgians hang their heads in shame.

I think that Ellis Arnall is a high type man. He comes from a fine family. He must be a brilliant man to be the attorney general. I like his platform. He has 10 good points in it. He seems to be out and above board in all that he says. I hope he gets elected by a "big" majority. I hope Talmadge will be so badly defeated he will never try again for any office. Very respectfully,

MRS. MARY J. EUBANKS, Atlanta.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

HOW LONG? A lady wrote me a letter. She was interested, she said, in politics. She wanted to know about Mr. Tom Linder and about Mr. Hugh Howell and about Mr. Tobe Daniel and about some other persons whose names have been in the newspapers. And then she wanted to know what I thought of Mr. Talmadge and how long I had been against him.

Well, it is a pleasure to try and write a piece about those questions just as the lady asked.

I've been against Mr. Talmadge all my life. He has had different names sometimes. A long time ago I was writing politics in Tennessee and I was against him then. His name up there was Luke Lea and the crowd that wrecked the state of Tennessee with their lust for power and their overwhelming desire to control everything in the state. I've been against him in municipal elections. His name was Hillary House in Tennessee's capital city and here in Atlanta there was another name. I've been against him in senate races where there were other names, but it was him. I was against him in Louisiana, where his name was Huey Long. And in Alabama, where his name was Tom Heflin.

As for Mr. Talmadge personally, I like him. I like his boy. I have no harsh feelings against him at all. I never have had. If I could do a favor for him I would. I get a sort of kick out of some of the things he does.

But, Mr. Talmadge, the politician, who has an unfortunate desire for power; who reacts most abnormally and dangerously to power, I am against. I always have been against him in any state by any other name. Those men come along. Some of them are asses. Trace always some of the people by having good quality. But add them up and make the total and you can make them be bad men for a state government, a city or a national government.

THE FARM APPEAL I think I got set in my ways about politics a long time ago. My father was one of those old Scotch Presbyterians who had a conscious scorn of anything which wasn't all wool and a yard wide. He tried to teach it to me. If he didn't it wasn't his fault, but my own.

He was a farmer for a great part of his life. There were tenant farmers on the farm and on neighboring farms.

I started thinking about them a long time ago. They were exploited then and they are exploited now. They have had a long, hard time of it for several generations.

Governor Talmadge and his crowd talk about how they are for the farmer, and I will admit that many of the small farmers are for him. I can understand it, too, because he talks to them and he knows something of their problem. Yet some free barbeques and a $3 automobile tag is all the real help they have ever got from him.

He opposes the national administration. I think the people generally know this. I think this is having some effect in their thinking about this race, and they sense that he doesn't really mean it. Their boys are in the Army. This man is against the President.

He and his crowd of big, rich farmers, the big land-owners who also own the small town banks and the gins and the stores, they have fought the Farm Security Administration all the way.

That is the only agency that actually is doing something for the small farmer. It is working. It is taking tenants and sharecroppers and putting them on farms as owners of small farms. It is working out. Don't let anyone sell you on the idea it isn't.

The Governor always has talked about putting people on the land. He must have meant putting them there as farm laborers and not as independent men and women. He must have meant for them to be on the land of one of his big owner friends, who sell the fertilizer at a big price, who sell supplies and food on credit and at a profit of about 50 per cent.

He never has made any effort to help the little man be what Thomas Jefferson said this country must be to be a democracy—a nation of land-owners.

I don't expect to persuade any of the "little men" with this piece. I think it's true. I'm just writing it in answer to that letter. He is for the farmer, all right. He helps the farmer... if the farmer is big enough to contribute to campaigns.

MR. LINDER Tom Linder was one of the men who started out with Mr. Talmadge. Mr. Talmadge was an unknown south Georgian. Tom Linder and some others helped him get started. They stuck with him all the way. They sacrificed for him. They stayed in the background. They gave him money when he didn't have it.

Tom Linder once wanted to run for office. The state committee passed a rule, at the Governor's request, which barred him. Now, the rule, I think, was a proper rule.

That isn't the point. The point is that here was an old friend who had helped out when the helping was needed.

When it came time to help him they cut his throat to try and get the votes from another group.

The have done crossed a great many more of the old friends. The have you hear, almost every day of some more more cutting the Talmadge organization. They can't stand it any longer. The people who work at the capitol are having to cut back money from their salary to go into the campaign fund. They are sick of that.

The teachers are afraid. Fear hangs over their jobs. Fear of one man and the great power he has over their state and their lives. Don't think it is a good thing for Americans to be afraid of the power one man has. If they are it is time to get rid of the fear.

That's why I say that if a man, or any other man, no matter what his name, who has this abnormal

Time was when I longed to travel and see the world. I was going to get rich and retire and make a tour of Europe, Asia and parts of Africa.

I never did make it and now it's too late, even if I had the coin. A multimillionaire can't tour Europe this summer—and if he has honor sense he doesn't want to.

This is a nice summer to settle down and stay put. Of course there are some folk who must travel to earn a living. They are out of luck. Tires wearing out, gas limited, trains and buses crowded. Lucky is the man whose job permits him to stay in one place or merely ply between home and office.

Several of my friends have told me they had had the devil of a time getting transportation anywhere.

But you can get used to staying at home. For the past month I've had a tank full of gas, my tires are fair and my new driver's license has arrived. Yet the car has rested in the garage. I had no place to go and didn't want to go anywhere. I still don't.

Good Old Days

Bit of rural Georgia history is found in T. J. Lance's column in the Towns County Herald.

"I asked Julie Twigg what is the biggest murder trial in the history of the county and this was his answer: It was the case of Tillman Justice who killed a man by the name of Goddard. The first trial was a mistrial but in the next term of the court he was convicted and sentenced to hang."

"The date of the hanging was fixed for November 18, 1887. Mr. Twigg says that he remembers the incidents and that he was present himself. He said that five to seven thousand people from as far away as 50 miles came to the hanging. Big Pence Birch was the county sheriff. The rope that was used in the hanging was cut into small pieces and given the people who wanted to keep them as souvenirs."

veners of the hanging. Mr. Twigg says further that this was the only murder case that brought the death penalty in the whole history of the county."

War on Records

Looks like another war of union musicians against "canned" music, a war which has been fought before. It didn't stop the talking movies.

This time the union wants to prevent "juke boxes" and radio stations from using records of music, though these presumably were made by members of the federation. There are few outsiders, except perhaps the hillbilly bands. Their members, too, may carry union cards. I've never asked them.

The idea, of course, is to force people who need music in their business to hire live musicians. Some restaurants and places of entertainment can afford this. Many cannot.

Well, as some sage remarked, there are two sides to everything—and sometimes three.

Sara Lawson McGinty, in the Chatsworth Times, quotes a letter to his home folks from Lieutenant Francis Jones, somewhere in the Pacific:

"I'd give a month's pay for a good Georgia watermelon," he wrote.

Which reminds me—I haven't had my first slice yet. But another day won't go by.

How the world do move! Especially in science.

I was brought up on tales of shipwrecked sailors adrift in a lifeboat for week after week, with no sight of sail on the horizon. There have been many shipwrecked sailors in lifeboats recently, some gone forever, some rescued.

But here's something that may help, if it works. Young Stannard Oil official has invented a type of automatic radio for lifeboats. It can be operated by anybody and it will signal the latitude and longitude of the boat without further attention. For 24 hours steadily, for a much longer period intermittently. It has a radius of 500 miles, which should reach the nearest ship lane.

Several south Georgia newspapers are protesting again about laws which permit cattle to run loose on the highways. Lives of two women in automobiles were lost recently. One driver swerved to dodge a pig. The other crashed into a sleeping cow.

But nothing is ever done about it. Those flatwoods farmers find it cheaper to let their stock graze at large than to fence them in. And they have votes.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

PRESIDENT FULLER.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller delivered his farewell message to the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association last Monday morning, and at noon Dr. and Mrs. Fuller were honored guests at a luncheon by the preachers and their wives, local denominational leaders, and representatives of the First Baptist church. It was an altogether happy occasion.

Dr. Fuller has been pastor of the First Baptist church, Atlanta, for the past 14 years, during which period he has served as president of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist convention, and for the past several years, as chairman of the Georgia Baptist Hospital Commission. He has also served as president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, president of the Christian Council of Atlanta, president of the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association, chairman of the executive committee of the Atlanta Baptist Association and the Georgia Baptist Convention.

Prior to his pastorate in Atlanta, Dr. Fuller was superintendent of evangelism of the Home Mission Board, and held pastorates in Georgia and South Carolina.

At the present session of the Southern Baptist Convention in San Antonio, he was unanimously elected president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, of Louisville, Ky., by the trustees of that institution. And so, it is no longer Pastor Fuller, but President Fuller.

Dr. Fuller's ministry in Atlanta has been an inspiration to the entire community. An able pulpiteer he has shown equal ability as a denominational statesman. His leadership in the city and state has been outstanding. All of which means that his going to Louisville is a very distinct loss to Georgia. There is but one compensating factor in it all, namely, the obvious leading of the Holy Spirit.

Dr. Fuller becomes the head of one of the largest and most useful theological seminaries in the world. There were 520 students enrolled during the past year. The graduates of this institution now fill pastorates, missionary posts, professorships, and denominational secretariats throughout the world, and the institution will continue to be a training camp for world leaders in the spiritual realm.

He succeeds Dr. John R. Sampey as president of the seminary. The first president was Dr. James Peter Boyce, who served as chairman of the faculty from the organization of the seminary in 1859 to 1888, and then as president in 1889. Dr. John A. Broadus was president from 1889 to 1895; Dr. W. W. Whitsett from 1895 to 1899; Dr. Edgar Young Mullins from 1899 to 1922; and Dr. Sampey from 1922 to 1942. The seminary was moved from Greenville, S. C., where it was organized in 1859, to Louisville, Ky., in 1877.

President Fuller enters upon his administration of this historic Baptist institution with the united and hearty support of the 5,000,000 white Baptists of the south.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

Public Favors Fingerprinting

By GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 14.—With the arrest of the eight Nazi saboteurs and the FBI drive to round up former Bund leaders and members, a growing majority of Americans believe everyone in the United States should be required to carry an identification card with his photograph and his fingerprints.

New York state is at present considering various plans for citizen identity cards or tags, primarily for identification in case of air raids. In Britain every man, woman and child has been required to carry a "national identity card" since September, 1940, and must be prepared to show the card when challenged by any officer.

National Sentiment.
National sentiment in the United States on the identity card idea was tested by the Institute last February and again today in surveys asking this question:

"Do you believe everyone in the United States should be required to carry an identification card containing, among other things, his picture and his fingerprints?"

The trend of sentiment is shown below:

One little-realized fact is that the American public has never been as squeamish about universal fingerprinting as many law officers suppose. In fact, as far back as 1937 the Institute found that more than two voters out of every three polled were in favor of starting fingerprint records for everybody in the United States.

Protection.
The two leading reasons why the public favors identification cards are that they would be useful in case of bombing raids, explosions and other accidents, and as a means of identifying enemy agents, saboteurs and spies, thereby reducing sabotage and fifth column activities.

However, a goodly number, about one-third, of those favoring the idea do so because they say this is a time of emergency.

South American countries have for many years collected civilian fingerprint records. Argentina has prints of her 18,000,000 inhabitants. Brazil registers the prints of all children.

G. O. P. Caucus Opposes Recess

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP) Senate Republicans voted unanimously today in opposition to an adjournment of congress for a definite period, as some Democrats have favored.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, said after a minority meeting that he had been authorized to commit the party only to periodic three-day recesses.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the majority leader, had advocated an adjournment of a month or six weeks after the house disposes of the tax bill and pending its consideration by the Senate Finance Committee.

American fighting men even now languish in Axis prison camps awaiting the final day of Victory and deliverance. Overwhelmed by superior forces, they are eating the bitter bread of loneliness and privation in enemy countries.

Short of the war's final conclusion, our government can do nothing to help them. But we can. International, neutral agencies, supported by the voluntary contributions of the American people, can bring them the precious gifts of food, clothing, and medical supplies, which mean the difference between hope and despair.

The War Prisoners' Aid Committee which discharges this priceless humanitarian work for our nation is one of the ten agencies in the United War Work Fund.

Your contributions to this fund, in addition to bringing urgently needed comforts to American boys in prison camps, will:

Supply food, clothing, medicines to the peoples of Greece, China, Russia, the Netherlands and Great Britain—men, women and children who have fought OUR fight and who are still keeping alive the bright spirit of human freedom.

Your gift will also help to provide ambulances and drivers for our Allies, assist the dependent families of American seamen killed in action, operate recreational and entertainment centers for American troops not only in this country but in all of the lonely outposts throughout the world where our soldiers are stationed.

Give generously—now—to the United War Work Fund. Your help is needed. Your army and navy can't do this continuing work of bringing comfort and hope to millions of human beings. Your government can't do it. Only YOU can do it.

Aussies Repulse Axis Attempt on New Desert Position

CAIRO, July 14.—(AP)—Australian desert troops have repulsed Rommel's armored counterattacks aimed at regaining the dominant coastal ridge at Tel El Eisa—Hill of Jesus—and the Royal Air Force stepped up operations today against masses of tanks and motorized equipment the enemy is bringing up around El Daba.

Senate Delays Vote on Russell Price Proposal

Committee-Approved Plan Would Bar Regional Ceiling Raises.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—After complicated parliamentary maneuvers, the senate postponed action today on a committee-approved proposal which would have the effect of barring regional increases in price ceilings, based on the assumption that transportation costs had risen, if in fact they had not.

The proposal, sponsored by Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, as an amendment to the omnibus defense fund bill, was aimed at invalidating the recent 2 1/2 cent per gallon increase in the price ceiling of gasoline in some of the nation's eastern states served by pipe lines. Russell said the cost of moving oil into Georgia had not increased, and other senators made similar claims with respect to South Carolina and Georgia.

The Russell amendment was approved once, but Senator Danaher, Republican, Connecticut, obtained reconsideration and final action went over until tomorrow.

Sixteen large-scale RAF operations by British fighter-bombers supported the ground forces defending General Sir Claude Auchinleck's newly won positions at the northern end of the Egyptian oil-front.

The aerial swarms were declared to have flattened the approaching Axis tanks and motor-borne infantry in mass operations beginning yesterday.

In the first phase of the day-long battle of the north, heavy RAF bombers struck the enemy transport columns and concentrations, and this was followed up by a big fighter-bomber attack on Axis airfields to keep as many planes land-locked as possible.

As a result the enemy air activity was satisfactorily curtailed to an extent that permitted the RAF to develop co-operating operations with ground forces later in the fighting against enemy attacks.

Among five German tanks destroyed by direct bomb hits were four of the powerful "Mark 3" type.

Rommel's tanks and infantry battered throughout yesterday morning at the Allied salient along the coastal railway west of El Alamein at intervals of approximately an hour, but each attack wilted before the three-pronged defense put up by heavy artillery batteries, the Aussie ground troops and the RAF.

(The Italian high command claimed "good results," declaring Axis forces had taken numerous prisoners in the desert fighting, including a battalion commander, and spoke of intense aerial activity. The German high command was less sanguine in its claims which told of "only local fighting" in the Alamein sector by declared 12 British planes were downed by the German ground defenses and said the Axis forces were continuously pounding Malta, the British island stronghold up near the head of Rommel's long supply line.

(The German communiqué reported a U-boat had sunk a tanker out of a strongly escorted Allied convoy off Palestine).

Aside from the lively fighting in the north and clashes between opposing columns in the south, just above the Qattara depression, the major action was in the air.

RAF fighters and fighter-bombers subjected Rommel's tank columns and large concentrations of vehicles to steady strafing and bombing—with success, the British said.

Bombers ranged over the Axis defenses as deep as Tobruk and Bengali to attack supply bases, following the heavy assault on Matruh.

In one sortie two Kittyhawks set fire to five troop-carrying trucks and 10 big Diesel-engine vehicles which were dispersed over a wide area.

Throng Sobs As Wilhelmina Talks to 4,000

Fellow Countrymen Hear Monarch Predict Ultimate Victory.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—In the heart of the Island of Manhattan, which was discovered by a Dutchman and which was purchased by another Lowlander from the Indians for a reputed $24, Wilhelmina, queen of the Netherlands and ruler of 70,000,000 subjects across the seas, held court tonight.

Without pomp and circumstance, attired simply, Queen Wilhelmina walked along a red carpet into the Waldorf-Astoria ballroom to talk quietly to 4,000 of her countrymen of her faith in the ultimate triumph of the democratic way of life.

"I know that your hearts beat warmly for your suffering fellow countrymen," she told her audience, many of whom wept at the words of their queen-in-exile.

She expressed the conviction that "ultimate victory will be ours."

To the cries of "lang leve de koningin"—"long live the queen"—which was raised by the audience and taken up by a thousand others crowding the halls and lobbies of the hotel, Wilhelmina replied by simply touching her hat.

When the 61-year-old monarch arrived in New York earlier today from President Roosevelt's Hyde Park home where she had been a guest, she was met at the city limits by Mayor La Guardia and Dr. Alexander Louden, Netherlands minister to the United States, and Mrs. Louden.

great superiority in men and machines.

It was not stated how far the orderly retreat south of Boguchar extended, but one dispatch said "several kilometers."

The Red army line east of Lisichansk was likewise undefined but here, also, the Germans had large forces supported by many tanks and planes.

This fighting carried a double-barreled threat: The Germans could try to go south to Rostov, which is on the west Caucasus "corner" some 125 miles away, or they could continue eastward toward Stalingrad—or both.

The newest danger was on the front southwest of Rzhev, which lies 135 miles northwest of Moscow. Here the Russians admitted the Germans were engaged in what they hoped would be an out-flanking offensive. This failed, the Russians said, but they added they had lost 12,000 Red troops dead, wounded or missing and also 80 tanks. The Germans (who have claimed the capture of upwards of 30,000 Russian prisoners here) lost 10,000 in dead alone, the official Russian account said.

Such a big operation here obviously carried the implication of a new threat to the capital. The Germans had been clinging to the Rzhev sector, since being hurled back from Kalinin, on the north, last winter.

One Russian dispatch reported that the Germans "have superior tank forces" in the sector southwest of Rzhev and this, it was indicated, meant that another big Nazi push was about to begin.

In the Voronezh sector, where the Germans made their first great plunge toward the Caucasus on the Fourth of July weekend, the Soviets appeared to have stiffened after the Nazi breakthrough reported Monday in one small sector.

They even made several counterattacks, and Soviet aviation was looming larger in the picture, with increased dive-bombing of the Don river crossings effected by the Germans.

Other Russian counterattacks on the west bank of the Don above Voronezh were reported to have routed two new German tank divisions, the 9th and 11th, resulted in capture of the divisional headquarters, wiped out a Hungarian cavalry detachment and wrecked 99 Nazi tanks.

However, all dispatches said the Germans had vastly superior numbers on the Voronezh front.

Sutton Addresses Georgia Teachers

Confidence in Georgia's Educational Leadership Was Named Prime Current Consideration by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Superintendent of the Atlanta Public Schools, in an Address Last Night to Some 100 Georgia Teachers Attending the First Annual Institute on Professional Relations Sponsored by the Georgia Education Association, at Emory University.

Dr. Sutton pointed out that approximately 100,000 children of school age were not enrolled in school last year, and that Georgia has the lowest paid teachers in the country with the exception of two other states. He stressed the need of "educational democracy" and the abolition of racial discrimination.

flying boats located the enemy force by moonlight and scored two torpedo hits on large enemy ships, one of which was believed to have been sunk.

Marine Planes. With daybreak June 4 several groups of Army and Marine Corps planes took off from Midway to seek out the enemy flotilla. Four Army torpedo bombers attacked two enemy carriers through a heavy screen of anti-aircraft fire, and one torpedo hit was believed to have been made. Two of the planes failed to return.

Six Marine Corps torpedo planes achieved one hit, one of the planes failing to return, and 16 Marine Corps dive bombers scored three hits on a carrier believed to have been the Soryu. Eight of the 16 were lost.

Another group of 11 Marine Corps dive bombers made a later attack and reported two bomb hits on an enemy battleship. It was left smoking and listing.

A group of 16 Army "flying fortresses" scored three hits on enemy carriers from a high altitude. One carrier was left smoking heavily.

Meanwhile, Midway was attacked by a large group of carrier-based Japanese planes. A "badly outnumbered" force of Marine Corps fighting planes engaged them. With the help of ground fire, some 40 of the Japanese air-

Tojo Ears Would Have Burned If He Had Heard U. S. Pilots

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—The Navy released tonight the following extracts from a log of radio conversations among members of a dive-bomber squadron who it said gave a Japanese battleship a "bad five minutes" in the Battle of Midway.

"The BB (Navy designation for battleship) is supposed to be about 40 miles ahead."

"There is the BB over there."

"Let's go! The BB is in the rear of the formation."

"This is Wally. Watch it on this attack."

"Where is the remainder of our attack group?"

"We are right behind you. Get going."

"Wally to Smith: What the hell are you doing over there?"

"Pushing over to the rear ship now."

craft were destroyed, but only after serious though "not disabling" damage had been done to Midway's ground installations. The Navy noted that "no plane was caught grounded at Midway."

With these developments, the Japanese fleet decided, apparently, that Midway was too strongly defended to continue the attack, much to the surprise of American officers. Between 8:30 and 9:30 a. m. on June 4 it changed course completely and unnoticed by the American planes, which at that time were returning to Midway.

The American carrier force had been moving into position north-east of Midway. A group of planes took off from it to resume the attack, proceeding to the general vicinity in which with unchanged course and speed the enemy vessels would have been. They searched for their quarry until falling gasoline supplies forced some down at sea and some into Midway. Those which alighted on the sea were mostly rescued.

Lost Squadron. While this was going on, the commander of a squadron of 15 torpedo planes located the enemy to the westward and went to the attack immediately "without protection or assistance of any kind."

"Although some hits were reported by radio from these planes," the Navy said, "and although some enemy fighters were shot down, the attack damage inflicted by this squadron in this attack may never be known. None of these 15 planes returned."

"The sole survivor of the 30 officers and men of this squadron was Ensign G. H. Gay Jr., who

"Enter dive. Our objective is the rear ship. Step on it! Are we going to attack or not?"

"Look at that — burn!"

"Hit the — again!"

"That scared hell out of me. I thought we weren't going to pull out."

"Let's hit them again. Let's hit them all."

"You are going to hit him right on the fan!"

"Let's get a couple of those destroyers."

"These Japs are as easy as shooting ducks in a rain barrel!"

"Gee, I wish I had one more bomb!"

"Those Japs couldn't hit you with a slingshot."

"Tojo, you — send out the rest and we'll get those, too!"

scored one torpedo hit on an enemy carrier before he was shot down."

Once the enemy was located, other carrier-based groups proceeded to the attack. They suffered "heavy losses," but torpedo planes engaged the attention of the enemy fighter planes and anti-aircraft to such a degree "that our dive bombers were able to drop bomb after bomb on the enemy ships without serious interference."

In this phase of the action, the Japanese aircraft carriers Kaga, Akagi and Soryu were severely damaged, two battleships were hit, and one was left "burning fiercely," one destroyer was hit and believed to have been sunk.

Yorktown Under Fire. Soon after dawn, 36 enemy planes from the undamaged carrier Hiryu attacked the Yorktown and her escorts. Eleven of 18 bombers were shot down, but seven got through.

"Of these seven," the Navy said, "one was disintegrated by a surface ship's anti-aircraft fire; a second dropped its bombload into the sea and plunged after it; while a third was torn to shreds by machinegun fire from the U. S. fighter planes. Four enemy bombers escaped after scoring three direct hits."

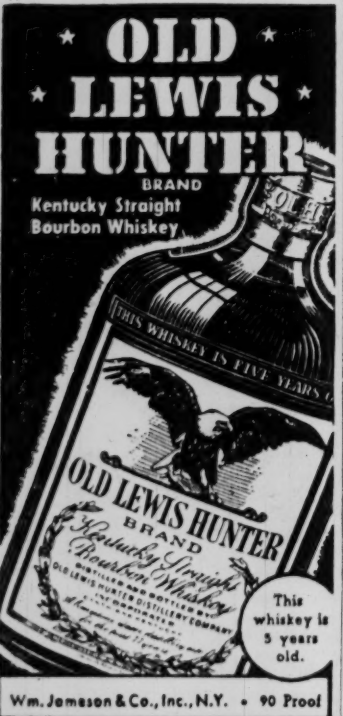

"Shortly afterward, 12 to 15 enemy torpedo planes escorted by fighters attacked the Yorktown. Between four and seven of this group were destroyed by our fighters and three were shot down by anti-aircraft fire before they could launch their torpedoes. Five succeeded in launching torpedoes but all five were destroyed as they attempted to escape."

"The Yorktown was hit during this assault and put out of action. The damage caused a list which rendered her flight deck useless for landings and take-offs. Her aircraft continued in the battle, operating from other carriers."

Over-Lapping. As another of the numerous over-lapping phases of the battle, some of her own planes meanwhile located the Hiryu, under battleship, cruiser and destroyer escort. They attacked at once, hit the Hiryu repeatedly and left her "blazing from stem to stern." She sank the next morning. Two battleships were severely pounded by bombs and a heavy cruiser was damaged severely.

That afternoon (June 4), an American submarine crept upon the smoking carrier Soryu and scored three torpedo hits. A fresh outbreak of flames followed. They engulfed the carrier and forced the crew to abandon ship. She sank during the night.

British Rain Notes On France Pledging To Lift Nazi Yoke

LONDON, July 14.—(AP)—The "shadow armies" of France and other subjugated lands observed the Bastille anniversary today as the portent of an Allied invasion, while the Germans tightened their channel defenses and Gestapo execution squads worked overtime.

Deliverance Of France Seen Soon by Ickes

Calvary Will Come to End, Secretary Assures
Oppressed Nation.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—A defeated France was told tonight by Secretary of the Interior Ickes that liberation from Germany would come sooner than the Nazis expected.

"The eternal spirit of France mocks the efforts of the Nazi assassins and the Fascist ruffians," Ickes declared in a speech prepared for a Bastille Day mass meeting sponsored by France Forever. "France's Calvary will come to an end—sooner than the assassins think."

Words written by Thomas Jefferson as true today as they were 127 years ago, Ickes asserted, quoting them as follows:

"It is impossible that France should rest under her present oppressions and humiliations. She will rise in that gigantic strength which cannot be annihilated, and will fatten her fields with the blood of her enemies."

Ickes declared that however long and bitter was the road ahead, the United Nations will restore freedom to France and to all the other lands that are under the lash of the Axis.

The interior secretary, who is also petroleum co-ordinator, said that already France was "straining her muscles" intent on breaking her chains and springing at the "Monster of Munich."

"And Hitler's French puppets and stooges, traitors all, have good cause to fear the vengeance of outraged French patriots on the day of victory," he said. "For the day of liberation will also be a day of just retribution."

Fighting French Are Decorated

Cairo, July 14.—(AP)—The "Fighting French" heroes of Bir Hacheim, the desert outpost in Libya, which was held by them for days before the general British retreat into Egypt, were decorated here today on the Bastille anniversary.

Thousands of their comrades are fighting against the Axis in desert, infantry and aerial units.

"I've just been thinking how cool I'd feel after a delectable Calvert Whiskey Collins"

Here's the formula for that personal cool spell: Juice of 1 lemon in a Collins glass, 1 teaspoon honey, jigger of Calvert Whiskey. Add ice, soda, a cherry, slice of orange. You'll marvel at the way this luxury whiskey blends with—doesn't overpower—the other ingredients. And that explains why ALL tall drinks taste better with Calvert Whiskey! ## Vichy Rejects F. D. R. Plea To Move Warships

Two Proposals for Shifting
Craft From War
Zone Spurned.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Acting Secretary of State Welles disclosed today that the Vichy government had rejected two proposals by President Roosevelt for the removal of demilitarized French warships from the Egyptian war zone.

The seven warships involved were demilitarized, by agreement with the British, shortly after the fall of France in 1940 and since then have remained in the British naval base at Alexandria.

President Roosevelt, Welles said, proposed to Vichy on July 3, that the warships be moved through the Suez canal under the protective custody of the United States and sailed to an American port, or some neutral port, for internment until the end of the war.

The President pointed out that the Vichy government that the warships at Alexandria were in a precarious position always likely to be subject to attack, whereas if they were removed to another port far from the war zone they would be safeguarded and returned to France after the war.

At the same time Mr. Roosevelt warned Vichy that if this offer were rejected the British would be justified in ordering the French warships out of Alexandria through the canal, and if they did not follow such British orders the British would be fully justified in destroying them.

This offer, however, was rejected by Chief of Government Pierre Laval.

On July 9 President Roosevelt made a second proposal. He suggested that the warships be withdrawn through the Suez canal and proceed, under British and American guarantees of safe passage, to the French Caribbean possession, Martinique. There, he said, they could be immobilized for the duration of the war.

The President emphasized that he made this proposal because whatever might be the developments in the African zone in the near future—the French warships there would be in danger of attack.

This proposal also was rejected, Welles asserted, the Vichy government insisting that the ships should proceed to a near-by French port. The French port suggested by President Roosevelt—Martinique—is a port of Fort de France—is not near Vichy and not within easy reach of German and Italian forces.

In disclosing the two proposals and their rejection, Welles said this government still hoped they would be reconsidered by Vichy. He said he was sure the French people would understand that the offers were made in the interest of France with a view to safeguarding French ships.

Another Talmadge Stalwart Resigns Position

terruption yesterday to the quiet routine of a clemency hearing.

While lawyers argued pro and con on the clemency case, Miss Elsie Ray, the Governor's private secretary, suddenly swept into the room and beckoned the Governor into a private office.

Back there, it is said, the Governor learned that Darden was circulating an interoffice memorandum, announcing to the members of his organization that he was resigning and thanking them for their accomplishments in building the efficiency of the department.

The clemency lawyers stood idly by in the Governor's office as the news was broken to Talmadge in the back room, where he holds his confidential chats with personal and telephonic whisperers of the lowdown. The Darden office memorandum was an unexpected blow.

The backroom advisor is said to have warned the Governor to try to get the jump on Darden and be the first to announce the resignation publicly.

Then, suddenly the Governor burst through the door into his private office and to the two dozen startled relatives of the clemency opponents and to two newspapermen, he announced:

"Allen Darden has resigned and I'm accepting it at once. He wants to go to let a man quit when he can't help me hold expenses down."

The Governor was waving a letter in his hand. "Is that his resignation, Governor?" he was asked.

"Yeah, this is it!" "How about a copy," asked a newspaperman.

The Governor thought for a second and then summoned Gen. Mobley, the executive secretary.

"Give 'em a copy of this," the Governor said and then he dictated the statement.

The copy of the letter revealed it had been written last Saturday and a postscript copied by the Governor's secretary read: "I am mailing this letter by registered mail. A. D."

The Darden letter said:

"Not having received a reply to my letter of June 2d, my resignation as Director of Income, Intangible and Inheritance Tax Units will become effective July 15th, 1942. Our fiscal year ended July 1st, 1942. As this is the beginning of a new fiscal year period, it seems to be the most logical time to effect a change."

"Under the program that I have inaugurated, the departments have been completely reorganized and our assessments and proposed assessments will continue to reflect a very material increase in revenue for the remainder of the year."

"Very truly yours," (Signed) ALLEN DARDEN, "Department of Revenue."

Governor's Reply.

The Governor's dictated statement read:

"Letter of June 2d referred to by Mr. Allen Darden asked me to approve increases in salaries of a number of the employees in his department."

"I am holding down the expenses in all of the departments in order to accumulate a reserve to take care of our schools, the old people, the insane at Milledgeville and the tubercular at Alto, and to make it possible for the counties to continue to operate and to maintain and keep up the roads. The head of any department, who is not willing to co-operate with me in this, and who wants to increase the overhead expenses of his department and who wants to resign, his resignation will be accepted by me."

Darden refused to discuss the break between him and Talmadge. He maintained a dignified reserve. "I have nothing to say," he said.

Shown the copy of the Governor's statement charging him with efforts to increase expenses in his department, he smiled and said: "I wish the Governor had the courage to reveal the text of my letter of June 2."

Darden refused to discuss the contents of the letter. "Ask the Governor," he said.

It was all so mysterious that the Governor was approached again late yesterday afternoon and asked if he would reveal the contents of the letter of June 2.

"It's what I said it was in my statement," he said. "Darden spoke of the increased tax collections of his department and mentioned the names of some persons whose salaries he wanted increased. I didn't agree with him, so I didn't answer. Everything I said in my first statement is true."

Several of the Talmadge Palace Guard who had been sitting in the executive chambers listening to the clemency hearing applauded when the Governor announced he was accepting the Darden resignation.

The Governor then announced he would appoint "someone out of the income tax department" to Darden's job, which will be vacated today.

Figures Show Increase.

"I'll give somebody who's working up there a crack at running the place," said the Governor.

The cold figures on Darden's success in his job are shown in this summary:

Total returns handled: 1941, 92,232; 1942, 111,559; percentage, 21% increase.

Total delinquent returns handled: 1941, 1,308; 1942, 2,091; percentage, 59.8% increase.

Additional tax collected: 1941, $582,690.26; 1942, $1,074,398.44; percentage, 84.38% increase.

Total tax collected: 1941, $7,408,438.60; 1942, $11,307,717; percentage, 52% increase.

Average collection by agent on proposed additional assessments: 1941, $1,425.71; 1942, $2,991.08; percentage, 109.8% increase.

Going further back, the Revenue Department issued this statement, showing Darden's accomplishments in his first year in the tax office:

"The application of business principles to political functions has enabled the Income, Intangible and Inheritance Departments to eliminate overlapping of effort and the streamlining of the entire functions of the departments."

"For the calendar year ending December 31, 1941, the Income Tax Unit has collected a total of $7,988,598.45 compared to $6,265,174.83 for the year 1940, a percentage increase of two per cent.

Expenses Decrease.

"Total expenses of operating the Department of Income for 1941, $113,335.93 against $133,949.63 for 1940, which represents a percentage decrease of 18 per cent.

"The Department of Income handled a total of 91,813 returns in 1941 as compared to 71,436 returns for 1940, an increase of 20,377 returns, or 29 per cent.

"In summary, an average of 10 per cent fewer employees handled 29 per cent more returns and collected 27 per cent more money than in 1940 at 18 per cent less cost."

"Thousands of tax cases which were in controversy at the beginning of 1941 have been disposed of. Hundreds of tax cases which were scheduled for litigation have been settled without court proceedings."

"On January 1, 1941, approximately 20,000 taxpayers had items adjusted by office and field audit. It is unfair to the taxpayer and the state to allow these de-

Freak Wreck Drapes Truck Over Store Top

Driver Unhurt as Machine Cuts Swath at Stockbridge.

A freak accident which resulted in the draping of a five-ton dump-truck from the roof of a one-story brick store in Stockbridge, Ga., occurred yesterday morning, but the driver was able to walk away from the scene of the wreckage.

Witnesses said the truck, driven by T. Prestwood, was rolling down a near-by hill, failed to make the left turn at the bottom of the hill, then tore through a telephone post, hit a cast-iron signpost, knocked over a gas tank and then, smashed to rest against the corner of the J. M. Gilbert store. This accounted for the incredible position of the demolished truck, its cab totally wrecked, and its rear end straddling the roof corner of Gilbert's store.

The mechanized cyclone cut a swath of devastation 25 feet wide and about 150 long, from the time it careened from the highway, until it met destruction against the Gilbert store. Misses Mary and Bernice Gilbert, who were inside the store at the time, and who admitted later "they were sure the Nazis had arrived," rushed outside just as the truck caught fire.

Prestwood, dabbling at the bleeding cuts about his face, was already inspecting his vehicle. The Gilbert girls extinguished the blaze, which was dangerously near their own gas tanks, with a garden hose.

Henry county police were expected to superintend the truck's removal from its unusual position.

Georgia Delegation Will Ask F.D.R. To Lift Gas Rationing

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—A personal appeal will be made by the Georgia congressional delegation to President Roosevelt to have that state lifted from the gasoline rationing program.

No date has been fixed yet for the call on the President.

This development followed a meeting of the delegation to consider a request from Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, for an investigation of the gasoline situation, with especial reference to recent price increases.

Talmadge contended the 2½-cent increase which went into effect in Georgia and the 16 other Atlantic seaboard states, was being collected in his state to provide a "slush fund" for his political rival for the governorship, Ellis Arnall.

Audience With F. D. R.

After discussing Talmadge's letter and hearing Senator George explain the manner in which the price increase is utilized, the delegation then agreed to seek an audience with the President.

Coincident with the meeting, called by Representative Vinson, dean of the delegation, Representative Camp reported he had been advised by Price Administrator Henderson that he hoped to relieve the situation whereby gasoline piped into Georgia was being retransported into neighboring Alabama and then sold at 2½ cents cheaper and in unlimited quantities to both Alabamians and Georgians.

George Claims Pooling.

In connection with Talmadge's charge that the price increase on gasoline in Georgia was going to his political rival, Senator George explained that the extra money thus collected is turned into a pool in which 95 per cent of the distributing companies were participating.

The increase represented the added cost to the companies of transporting gasoline and petroleum products by tank car and pipe lines as compared with the normal method of moving such products by tanker to the eastern seaboard, the senator explained.

He said the money thus derived did not go to the oil companies participating in the pool until the individual companies had proved to the satisfaction of a private auditing company that they previously had spent their own money in extra transportation for the gasoline or petroleum products brought into the eastern seaboard.

Russell Misses Meeting.

Every member of the Georgia delegation, with the exception of Senator Russell, was present at the meeting. The latter explained he was prevented from attending by more important business but would concur in any action the delegation took toward improving the gasoline situation in the state. It was brought out that the delegation, working principally as individuals, had been working on the rationing problem in Georgia for some time, and that the decision to see the President collectively did not represent their initial action on the question.

In his discussion of the situation along the Alabama border, Representative Camp said he had been advised by W. C. Cantrell, an oil distributor, of Carrollton, Ga., that the shipment of gasoline from Georgia into Alabama was causing Georgia to starve and "Alabama to fatten."

Clemency Asked For Wife-Slayer

Relatives and friends of C. E. Martin Jr., 24-year-old DeKalb county man under a death sentence for the slaying of his estranged wife, appealed for clemency from Governor Talmadge in a hearing in the executive chambers yesterday.

C. E. Martin Sr., father of the boy blamed the events leading up to the slaying as "in-law troubles." Roy Leathers, solicitor of the Stone Mountain circuit, opposed clemency, arguing that the Governor should judge the case on its merits as contained in a record he left for the Governor's study.

The Governor took the case under advisement.

TARZAN

TARZAN ALLOWED THE LAST NAZI TO ESCAPE, TO CARRY THE MESSAGE OF TERROR TO HIS COMRADES!

NOR DID HE SLACKEN HIS PACE UNTIL HE COULD NO LONGER HEAR THE DREADFUL DRUMS WHICH WERE THE SYMBOL OF DEATH!

NOW TARZAN RETURNED TO HIS BASE. KEEP THE DRUMS BEATING, HE ORDERED, TO STRIKE FEAR TO ALL WHO COME NEAR!

WHEN THE LONE SURVIVOR CAME BACK, HIS COMMANDER SHOUTED: "YOU MUST LEAD US TO TARZAN'S HIDING PLACE!"

Nostalgic Rhyme Inspired By Gift of Atlantan's Book

• • • • • EVER SINCE Knowles and Jean Nutting Davis left here some time ago to reside in Washington, D. C., where the former is engaged in defense work, they have been assailed with the nostalgic truth that "there's no place like home." Their days, however, have been brightened considerably by letters, a small remembrance, etc., from thoughtful Atlanta friends.

Both Jean and Knowles are known to be literary-minded, besides being interested in any historic facts pertaining to their native state. It was for this reason that a recent gift from Peggy Underwood (Mrs. Henry) Poer was a copy of "Georgia: Unfinished State," the best seller authored by her uncle, Hal Steed, with whom the recipients happen to be acquainted.

Jean was so delighted with the book that the usual "thank-you" note was not adequate to express her appreciation. Instead it took the form of the following clever rhyme:

"Dear Peggy and dear Henry, too,
I sit me down to write to you
To thank you for that charming book.
To excited ones, like Knowles and me,
It's like a glimpse of heaven to see
A picture of a Georgia brook,
A Georgia town, a Georgia face,
(Why did we have to leave the place?)
But since we cannot be at home,
The next best thing's to read about it.
And now we need not do without it
Since getting Mr. Steed's grand tome.

"In Washington there's much to do,
And R's are rolled and rerolled,
But still it's pleasant in its way,
And here we're stuck until war ends,
Bereft of family, home and friends,
Looking forward to the day
When peace has come and war is thru,
And we're back home with friends like you.
We know what Georgia friendships mean,
So thank you for a gracious thought
And for the book the mail man brought."

Don't forget to call Mrs. Wilmer Dutton today and make arrangements to entertain cadets from the Naval Air Base as your guests for dinner on Sunday. Mrs. Dutton's number is Hemlock 1467.

• • • • • CLARE WARE has as her attractive guest at her home in Druid Hills, Betty Peterson, of Great Neck, Long Island.
This is Betty's first visit to Atlanta, and she is finding out that southern hospitality, of which she has heard so much, is a reality, for she is being feted at many lovely informal parties. Betty and Clare will both return in September to Randolph-Macon College, where they will be juniors.

• • • • • WHEN a group of the younger set spent the weekend with Frank Gay at his family's summer home at Lakemont recently they drew up what they called "A Lakemont Charter," and everyone was requested to sign it, including the chaperons, Mary McGaughey (Mrs. Ellis) Gay and Mildred Ewing (Mrs. Ewell) Gay. The houseparty guests were Frances Grove, Palmour Holmes, Sally Prescott, Betty Greve, Earl Stradman, Tom Patton, DeFord Smith and the host, Mary and Mildred. The charter inserted a very special clause in the contract, it seems, that called for their presence at everything, so that they could not be treated as chaperons.
Among the rules included in the "Lakemont Charter" was one which stipulated that two of the girls had to do all the cooking, while two had to wash all of the dishes. Then, two boys had to do all the marketing and be responsible for keeping the pantry filled, while two others were entrusted with the finances.
In the event of quarreling among the girls, "The Lakemont Charter" ruled that they be sent home in the first Atlanta-bound bus, and if the boys quarreled, they were to be barred from eating in the dining room with the rest of the crowd. Another point in the regulation was that everybody had to join in everything planned, because no slackers would be tolerated.

Needless to say, the charter proved to be a wonderful success, for not one guest violated a rule!

Final Parties Fete Miss Julia Block And Lieut. Jones

Climaxing the brilliant series of parties given for Miss Julia Block and Lieutenant Charles Baxter Jones Jr., U. S. A., of Macon, whose marriage will be a fashionable event of tomorrow, will be the buffet supper to be given this evening by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Banker, uncle and aunt of the bride-elect, at their home on Seventeenth street. The affair will precede the wedding rehearsal.

The lace-covered table in the dining room will be centered with an arrangement of Roosevelt roses. Colorful garden flowers will decorate the other reception rooms. The punch bowl will be placed on a table in the garden and will be presided over by the host's niece, Miss Evelyn Block.

The guests, numbering 88, will include the members of the bridal party, families and out-of-town guests.

Yesterday afternoon the couple shared honors at the tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Meador and their son and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Barnett Jr., at the Meador home on Peachtree circle.

Mrs. E. Bates Block, mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. C. Baxter Jones, mother of the groom-elect, of Macon; Mrs. Thomas D. Meador III and Mrs. Troup Miller, of Montgomery, Ala., assisted in entertaining.

Summer flowers adorned the reception rooms and were used as the centerpiece on the tea table in the dining room.

Guests included the wedding party, families, out-of-town guests and a few additional friends.

Mrs. Granberry Fetes Daughter

Mrs. W. R. Granberry was hostess at an elaborate trolley-tea yesterday honoring her daughter, Miss Charlotte Granberry, whose marriage to Captain Robert Gillespie, U. S. A., will be an event of Saturday.

The trolley, honor guest and the latter's grandmother, Mrs. R. L. Granberry, formed the receiving line, and stood in the drawing room before a background composed of baskets of pastel flowers.

The table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and was adorned with flowers. The large punch bowl was placed at one end of the table on a mound of flowers carrying out a green and white color scheme.

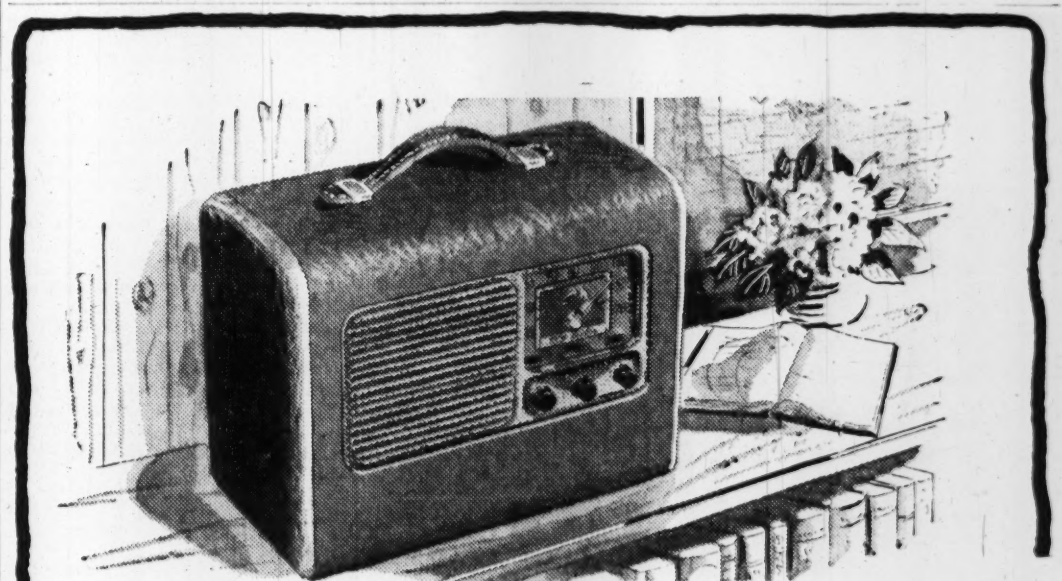

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Robert Monroe Bush, aunt of the bride-elect; Mesdames John Blick Jr., James Blake Young, J. F. Selman, Ben R. Padgett, J. F. Settle, Theresia Anderson, W. J. Zahn, P. L. Blackshear and Miss Miriam Rudels.

Lieut. Mrs. Simms Are Honor Guests

Among attractive visitors in the city are Lieutenant and Mrs. J. Ward Simms, of Washington, D. C., who arrived Sunday to visit their mother, Mrs. Lula Black Simms, on Ninth street. A number of informal parties have been planned for the visitors, whose marriage took place last October. Mrs. Simms being the former Miss Gloria Turner, of Durham, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Ford will be hosts at dinner Friday evening at their home on Andrews drive in compliment to Lieutenant and Mrs. Simms. On Saturday Mesdames Margaret and Russell Stovall will entertain at tea in their honor at their home on Thirteenth street.

Yesterday the visitors were central figures at a tea given by their mother at the Druid Hills Golf Club. Friends of the popular couple were invited to call between the hours of 5:30 and 6:30. Garden flowers in a variety of colors formed the decorations, with an attractive arrangement of gladioli centering the tea table.

Points for Parents

By Edythe Thomas Wallace

Mother: "I know that Alice is a fine girl but she gives other people a wrong impression of her when she talks so loud on the street. Maybe you can find a way to help her realize this."

Mother: "I can't let you go down town with Mary. She's so loud and boisterous on the street."

Daughter: "You're just prejudiced against her. I like her best of all the girls."

If parents of teen-age wish their counsel to be heeded, they will keep in mind that a strong feeling of loyalty toward friends is one of the fine traits of adolescents.

Dr. Brady Tells Best Method For Turning Somersaults

By Dr. William Brady.

Through faulty technique long ago I illustrated the "Invitation to the Somersaulting" with drawings designed to show the novice how to roll over. The sketches seemed to me to make the thing so simple that any one could get the hang of it almost at a glance. But it only goes to show that as a teacher I deliver a mean wood on the bowling green. It has dawned on me, since we in the apartment have been with-drawn into the order, that the position of the model in the drawings is fundamentally wrong, and I regret now that it did not occur to me to use a movie to illustrate the invitation. Might have saved a lot of ceilings in the apartments below. I hope any reader who darn nearly broke his or her neck trying the stunt in the manner of the illustration will think no more about it. My error, I'm sorry, but after all it does seem as though any one should be able to turn a dozen on the floor, anywhere with-out anybody below or in the next room, wondering if there is an earthquake.

You see, the secret of successful somersaulting lies in curling up tight at the take-off. The instructions, as you may read in the invitation, were as follows: Crouch down, place both hands on floor or pad or mattress at first 1-2 feet apart, then place the top or crown of your head on the floor between your hands. Look out now! You're in a precarious position, and it requires but a slight push with your feet to roll you over.

It isn't the top or crown of your head, but the back of your head or as nearly the back as you can contrive, that you should place on the floor. In the right position for a smooth, easy roll which brings you right up on your feet (still curled up tight) you should be able to look up between your legs at the ceiling behind you just before you push off.

What daily somersaulting is good for the "Invitation to the Somersaulting" explains—for a copy send stamped envelope bearing your address. Few doctors take their own medicine. I do half a dozen or a dozen rolls and the half dozen selected movements from the Last Brady Symphony which I believe essential to preserve vite, first thing every morning and often take the links out of body and mind by rolling a few in front of my desk when at play here in my playroom preparing these articles.

Gratitude and Pity Form Poor Basis For a Happy Marriage

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:
To begin with, I am 21. Last year after finishing college, I began working for an amiable widower whom I shall call J. He was about 40. At first I had business dates with him, but later he became purely social. He has been very kind to me, and three months ago asked me to marry him.

After much persuasion from my old maid aunt, with whom I have lived since my parents' accidental death 10 years ago, I accepted him and we set the wedding date for August 28. I have known from the first that I did not love him, but he loves me very much.

I knew J had been married, and that his wife died seven years ago, but he forgot to mention that he had a son, I will call T, almost 26 years old. Due to present circumstances he had to return from South America, where he had been for the past four years. I met T at a party and he has been calling since. I fell in love with him instantly, but, of course, I could not tell him. He loves me, too, and has been trying daily since I met him three weeks ago to date me, but I have refused. T knows about his father and me, but J does not know T has been calling on me.

I know that I cannot go on with the marriage, but I hate to hurt J, because he has been so sweet to me. Should I tell him everything and return T's love? T threatens to tell his father if I do not. I must have an answer soon because T is leaving the States for some defense work soon. J has a terrible temper and I am afraid he may do something awful.

BEVERLY.
If you do not love J, by all means break your engagement to him. In the first place, I think he is entirely too old for you. In the second place, there is no reason for you to marry him, just because of some pressure brought on him because of pity and because of his father's feelings. You will be the one to be pitied and who will be hurt by entering into this loveless marriage. I am not saying that it does not make any difference if you hurt J, but you do not have to go through with this marriage if you have found someone else you love.

As for T, I see no reason in the world why you should not have dates with him. Since he knows about you and his father, the situation is clearer than it would be under other circumstances and the two men were unrelated. If T professes to love you so much, it is up to him to go into action. Have a talk with him and see how the situation is and work out some solution. I think that if T loved you and was in anyway interested in having the affair continue, that he should go to his father and explain the situation. It is a case of man to man, rather than son to father.

You have a perfect right to postpone the wedding, because no woman has to marry any man she does not love. A lot of them do, but on the other hand, every woman should have at least one love marriage. Many women marry for position, money, fame or convenience, but a love marriage is very important. Break off with J and don't worry about his temper. If he displays it now, he will keep the wheels of industry turning. Don't think of what you think it would be if you were his wife? I all for T, or at least someone his age. Why not introduce T to the old maid aunt? It might work out "happy-ever-after" for all of you. It is better to break with J now than marry him, and be unhappy all the rest of your life.

How To Suit Your Diet To the Weather

By Ida Jean Kain.

Last summer whenever the thermometer hit 90, the boss knocked off at 3:30 and you skipped out by the next elevator. But this year it's different for all of us. War doesn't stop for the weather. We have to stay on the job and keep the wheels of industry turning. That takes energy and good nutrition.

You can't get much done on meals that fall far short of the safety margin as usually happens in the summer. Don't string along on sandwiches and iced tea. If you know how to eat, you won't wilt in the heat like lettuce. Calories are fuel and you don't need as many of them. The hot weather slows you up and induces a muscular relaxation which affects your whole system. Your menus should be simple... less work for the digestive system, and for you, too. So you don't want many foods rich in fat or protein. Cut down on pastries, fried foods, fat meats, gravy, mayonnaise, and even too much lean meat. They're all "heating."

But you need just as many of the protective elements because internal activities go on as usual. For a good summer diet, have fresh vegetables and crisp salads, whole grain or enriched bread, milk, plenty of fresh fruits, and moderate amounts of lean meat, cheese and eggs.

An abrupt change in your diet is never good. If you are used to hot meals, a sudden switch to cold menus may cause a digestive upset. It is a good rule to have one hot food with every meal. And if you are working hard and perspire freely, you may need more salt than usual.

Don't drink too much ice water or any other cold beverage—nor between meals. When you are really feeling the heat, it is a shock to the nerves of the stomach to eat or drink any very cold food in a hurry.

Some people say there's nothing like a cup of hot tea to cool you off. But that depends on the humidity. When the air is dry, a hot beverage does prove cooling. But when the air is heavy with moisture, the cool beverage—which helps to carry away body heat—is the more cooling. Drink it slowly.

Take it easy during a heat wave. Physical exertion increases the amount of heat you have to get rid of. That goes for calisthenics, sports, and even fast walking. Take your exercise and do your running around in the cool of the morning. And lastly, keep your temper. Nothing makes you hotter than flying off the handle.

To keep fit you must have some exercise even in warm weather. Send large stamped return envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for the leaflet, "Stretch the Fat From Waistline, Ribs, Wishbone."

MY DAY: Difficulties Facing The Hospitals

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Monday.—I do not think I ever remember July weather as pleasant and cool as it has been the last few days. Of course, the growers of fruit say we have had too much rain this summer and it has hurt the crops. Up in Rhinebeck, a project was started to provide pickers by bringing a group of young girls together to be paid by the farmers according to the amount they picked. Great difficulties have arisen because they have not had enough picking to pay for board and lodging.

Many of them, of course, have counted on making a little money on the side. They felt, in addition, that they were performing a job that was useful to the country, since they had been told that labor was needed on the farm and was scarce.

No one can control the elements, however, and the farmer is always subject to the ups and downs brought about by Dame Nature's whimsies. I think it is the occupation above all others that is filled with unknown hazards and requires more wisdom, foresight and hard work than any other occupation in the world. Probably this is why it also carries such great compensations and rewards. Many a man who has made his way in other lines remembers his boyhood on the farm with gratitude and joy.

We are taking a picnic lunch today up to the top of the hill, but the children have decided they want their picnic right near the swimming pool, so they don't have to bother to dress.

This morning I speak at Vassar College at the opening of the Vassar Summer Institute for family and child care services in wartime.

I have just had drawn to my attention the difficulties which are today confronting hospitals all over the country, and the magnificent way in which these difficulties are being met. Many doctors and nurses, who are needed in the armed forces, are being drawn from the hospitals. They are, therefore, trying to meet the needs of the civilian population with a reduced staff of doctors and, in many cases, a nursing force which can only provide expert supervision for new nurses in training.

This is going to require, on the part of the civilians, less use of hospitals for unimportant illnesses that can be cared for at home, more thoughtfulness in the demands made on doctors and nurses when in the hospital, and a certain amount of patience and understanding of the problems created by the war situation.

Today's Charm Tip.
To calm your nerves, advises Dr. Louis E. Bisch, hie yourself off to a private corner and resort to a good cry or tell the furniture what you think of this cockeyed world and you'll feel better quickly.

KILL ANTS
"IT'S A KILLER"

WRONG DIET CAN CAUSE DIARRHEA

Mother, be very careful when your child is running off his bowels. Watch his feeding and be particular with your own diet, too, because improper feeding is a frequent cause of diarrhea, or loose bowels. TEETHINA has been successfully used for many years to relieve diarrhea caused by wrong diet. It gently moves waste from the little bowels without irritation. TEETHINA is also recommended for temporary constipation and colic due to gas or sour stomach. It is sold by druggists, contains no opiates, and costs but 30 cents for 12 pleasant-tasting powders. Give TEETHINA according to the directions in each package and write Teething, Columbia, Ga., for a free baby booklet.

HELMINE NO HEADACHE WHEN COTTON IS WORN

Hot weather never kept a jitterbug from dancing, but this summer dancing can be done in gowns so cool as to be almost air-conditioned. Cotton party frocks were never lovelier, sheerer, or more becoming. From fairy-like flower prints of faintest hue to vivid tropical colors, cottons give a girl demureness or dash, depending upon the effect she wants.

Besides being cool, a cotton party dress gives its wearer a care-free mind. If the hemline gathers soil from the floor, or if perspiration filters into the underarm section, the dress requires only a good laundering to make it clean and fresh again. No worry lest a dirty hemline put a floor-length dress out of commission, for with washable cotton a little soap and water provides the remedy.

Free Freckles

FREE BEAUTY BOOKLET
It tells a delightful story about Stillman's Freckle Cream. More than just a freckle cream... makes skin lighter... it's a texture softener... smoother. Over 32,000,000 jars have been purchased at drug and cosmetic counters in the last half century. Write for this interesting story to the STILLMAN CO., AURORA, ILL.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(P)—

Late bidding for stocks, motors and assorted industrial favorites switched the trend in today's stock market and early declines of fractions to a point or so were converted into gains of as much as five points for some.

Irregularly lower prices at the start failed to bring out any sizeable offerings and, with the ticker tape dozing at intervals, boardroom observers got the idea the market might be ready to resume the big advance which was stemmed by profit-taking at the end of last week.

There also was enough inflation psychology still present in the financial sector to inspire a certain amount of buying although opponents of this line of thought were plentiful. Helped by the revived hopes the House Ways and Means Committee might reverse itself on the recent stiff corporation tax proposals.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 2.2 of a point at 37.2, cancelling the loss of the Monday's session. Dealings picked up on the recovery shift and transfers for the full proceedings followed.

Faces, Facts and Figures

BOOTH FARMER INCOME

Cash returns to Georgia growers and shippers rose 59 per cent, to $1,689,286, last year on fresh fruits, vegetables and peanuts sold through the Atlantic Commission Company, produce-buying affiliate of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, it is reported from New York. This figure compared with purchases of $1,059,696 in 1940.

The report on Georgia operations was part of an analysis of the food chain's national produce operations made by John A. Hartford, A. & P. president, showing that continued shortening of the route from farm to family dinner tables enabled the company to return to its farm suppliers 7.8 cents more of each dollar spent by consumers for fresh fruits and vegetables than in 1937 and 1.1 cents more than in 1940. This represents increased returns to growers of 16.7 per cent over 1937 and 2.06 per cent over 1940, he pointed out.

He stated that the increase in cash returns to Georgia growers and shippers last year accompanied a rise of 39 per cent in the company's tonnage purchases of Georgia-grown fresh fruits, vegetables and peanuts from 2,163 carloads in 1940 to 2,929 in 1941. Last year's purchases included peaches, cantaloupes, cabbage, watermelons, beans, potatoes, onions, peanuts and miscellaneous fruits and vegetables.

Georgia's produce purchases were made directly from growers and shippers in producing areas, with the balance made up by spot purchases at terminal markets.

MUSIC PUBLISHING HOUSE—Turning "frozen" machinery into live, warm-blooded music is now being accomplished by Enrico Leide, popular musical conductor of this city, who has joined with...

Mr. Armstrong, president of the Fletcher Machinery Company, and the two now make up the Fletcher Publishing Company, at 505 Peachtree street.

Mr. Armstrong, wishing to convert this machinery organization and investment into a business, badly handicapped by priorities, suggested the music publishing house to Leide. Details were soon arranged, and now the musical publishers are handling compositions from Virginia to Texas.

"We have a two-story building with an office floor, studios and shops," says Leide. "It's the first music publishing house in Georgia, and as far as we know, the only one in the southeast. Songs are mailed to us or brought by composers of both sexes and all ages; titles range from Miami romances to the glorification of privates and shailors, with a generous sprinkling of Nazi razzing. We have already discovered some talent in Georgia and three or four outstanding hits in Atlanta. We edit, arrange, appraise and publish. I hope that Atlanta and the south will appropriate my new business, popular music in this part of the country."

Two Sumter Girls Win Club Honors

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
AMERICUS, Ga., July 14.—Marion Mitchell and Claire Guest won first honors at the third district 4-H Club contest held at Abraham Baldwin College, Tifton, last week.

Miss Mitchell, who represented Thompson school, Plains, won first place in the clothing review, with an afternoon dress made by her, and Miss Guest was awarded first place in the bread-making competition.

By virtue of being awarded these honors the two Sumter county girls are entitled to enter the state competition in October, and if successful, compete at the 4-H Club Congress, which meets in Chicago in November.

Now, as to Noxious Effluvia: He Might Try Basso Profundo

There has been dignity attached to the Office of Civilian Defense since the start. Remember when Dean James M. Landis referred to a blackout as termination of illumination?

Yet there is the practical side, too. Take the latest bulletin, for instance.

Following a paragraph which recommends that wardens use "sniffsets" to learn the different gases, there is one on "How the Gas Alarm Is Sounded."

"Presence of gas will be made known by percussion sounds, such as wooden racket noisemaker, beating upon drums, metal objects, or wood in a rapid manner. In the event that a warden has no standard device to sound an alarm when the presence of gas is detected, he can sound such an alarm by beating upon garbage pails or ash cans with sticks, beating upon metal pipes or by other means which his own ingenuity will suggest. The sound should be distinctive, and the people of the warden's sector should be trained to clearly recognize the alarm to be used."

Or perhaps he could employ his voice at the range prescribed after missing a $5 putt?

Husband Is Nazi Prisoner, Jan Struther Told Here

By BETTY MATHIS.

America's war effort is all right. Take it from one who has been through all this before—Miss Jan Struther, author of the best-seller, "Mrs. Miniver," and as courageous and lovely a Mrs. Miniver as anyone she or Hollywood has created.

Miss Struther, in Atlanta yesterday as a part of her "squirrel-in-a-cage" tour of America, talked of the war and of her husband, attached to the British forces in Africa and now a prisoner of the Germans, and her older son who will join his father's regiment there in October, as soon as he is old enough.

She talked briefly and ate her breakfast with relish, complaining she is forced to drink tea all the time—and she doesn't like tea, not much, anyway.

Husband Is Prisoner.

There was talk of the Egyptian campaign and she expressed optimism about the turn of events in the past week or so. She said she had just received news that her husband, Lieutenant Anthony Maxtone-Graham, of the Scots Guards, is a Nazi prisoner. She didn't want to talk about it because she was afraid that the news would reach her two younger children who are in New England, before she could tell them the news herself. She agreed to let the news be published after she decided to telephone Janet Mary, 14, and Robert Mungo, 11.

Her 18-year-old son, a member of the British Home Guard, is James Anstruther.

Miss Struther has been in America since July 4, 1940. She came with her two younger children directly after Dunkirk and saw only the beginning of the bombings which are so vividly portrayed in the film from her book.

Warming Up Period.

"America is in a warming up period," the small brown-haired author said yesterday. "I think the war effort of her civilian population is really terrific. This is a trying time. There are inconveniences, curtailments. There is little opportunity for personal heroism. Until actual bombings come, I don't think Americans can do more.

"The war is doing one very fine thing. It is making it possible for a great many people to learn something that will be extremely valuable to them in peace times. Nutrition courses, first aid, home nursing, care of children. All these things are vastly important in war, but the can make for better peace also."

Speaking at a luncheon in her honor given by the Atlanta Better Films Committee, Miss Struther declared, "there still remains a little of the stuffed shirt in us all. By that I mean that we are still a little reluctant to accept the inconveniences and shortages gracefully. But the sooner we get over being stuffed shirts, the sooner we shall win this war."

"Keep Busy."

Miss Struther's recipe for times like these is "Keep very, very busy."

Apparently it works, because she says as long as she stays occupied and knows that her husband is still alive things are not too bad.

Her lecture tour and her series of personal appearances with the movie have taken her into 42 states.

In the west she followed Senator Wheeler and Charles A. Lindbergh on the lecture circuit. "I wore a gas mask," she said.

In her tour she has had opportunity to observe America building an Army—a truly magnificent Army, she says. "I see so many of the boys who are just going in. They look and act like boys. Many of them are reading comic books just like those my son reads. But then I see the boys in uniform. They have become fine looking men. That is the thing that makes me know the Axis will win."

Miss Struther visited the Naval Reserve Air Base, where she was introduced to many of the officers and men and made one personal appearance at Loew's Grand theater.

She enjoys the distinction, she says, of being the only author in history who is perfectly satisfied with every detail of the picture made from her book. She has seen the film three times and has wept copiously each time.

"Very pleasurable tears, on the whole," she said.

A Midnight Telephone Call

... and 26 trucks report for duty at 6 A. M.

The midnight quiet is ripped by the shrilling telephone—the manager of a Georgia trucking company answers it.

Into his ears pours an insistent voice:

"Jones? This is Lieutenant Baxter. Hate to call you like this—but we've got to have 26 trucks at the Conley depot right away. There's a rush job on hand."

"Whew! That's a big order, Lieutenant—but that's our job. You can start getting ready to load—we'll have them there."

"Swell business, Jones—I knew we could depend on you. It's an emergency shipment of supplies for Fort ——. A division is waiting on them before moving out."

Forty-eight men called out of bed. Twenty-six trucks gassed, oiled, and with trailers attached, roll out of an Atlanta terminal and report at Army Depot before 6 A. M. That same morning they deliver their rush shipment of cots, blankets, food, and other war supplies to their destination. A division moves out.

Georgia truck lines have again gone into action.

For the country's welfare in war or in peace truck transport is indispensable. Freight shipped by truck is never side-tracked. It rolls straight and true via the shortest route with no delays. This tends to cut the cost of consumers goods as the money saved in fluid direct freight service is passed on to you.

EVER THOUGHT OF THIS WHEN YOU SAW A TRUCK?

• The average operating taxes per for-hire truck annually is $1,090.

• 54,000 or 43% of the communities in the United States are entirely dependent on trucks for freight transportation.

• Atlanta to New York 159 times—in the last ten years taxes collected from trucks in America were enough to build that many miles of modern highway.

In the service they render and in the taxes they pay—truck lines earn your support and your friendship. . . .
